Robb hopes to make the jump From FinCom to selectman?

By Neil Fater

A man who spent the 1990s advising Andover on how to spend its tax money is looking to play a greater role in town government during the next decade.

Finance Committee member Don Robb, a familiar face at Town Meeting, will join incumbent selectman Brian Major and youth football leader Ted Teichert on the March selectman's ballot. Two selectmen seats are up for reelection, but nine-year incumbent Larry Larsen has said he will not run again.

Naming no specific issue as the centerpiece for his campaign, Robb says he is running because he believes selectmen must collaborate better and create longer range plans for the town.

"I think we need, on the Board of Selectmen, to get back to operating as a five-member board," says Robb. "We need to take a pretty careful look at where we want to be five or 10 years down the road."

Downtown trick-or-treat canceled

By Taylor Armerding

The Andover Center Association will not host a trick-or-treat afternoon for children in the downtown this year.

ACA Chairman Thomas Keefe and former chairman Lori Becker said the decision came at the group's last meeting, and was based largely on safety concerns and that the number and ages of children had grown beyond the ability of local merchants to handle it.

The traditional Halloween Day trick-or-treat hours will still remain, on Sunday, from 5-7 p.m., according to Police Chief Brian Pattullo.

"When we started it, we thought we'd get maybe 100 kids," says Becker, now a selectman and also owner of the women's clothing store Citrus on Main Street. "We got 500, and it just kept growing after that."

Keefe, of Addison Travel on Chestnut Street, says the merchants decided to start it six years ago when the police department had canceled the regular trick-or-treat, because of a scare about razor blades in fruit or candy given to children.

"The merchants decided to do something

A push for cheaper housing

By Rebecca Lipchitz

History began to repeat itself Monday as the Planning Board and Board of Selectmen met in a work session on Monday to discuss ways of creating more affordable housing in Andover.

"The problems this town was facing in the 1980s are the same problems its facing today, and the opportunities to solve them are once again the same," says Planning Director Steve Colyer.

Monday's meeting was an effort to break the cycle of an economy that fills Andover's open space with houses at high prices, leaving little or nothing for those with middle or lower incomes.

Officials and affordable-housing advocates at the meeting said the answer takes several forms — changes to local zoning restrictions, ways to subsidize land purchases that would keep prices of new homes down in Andover, and covenants to ensure that homes stay affordable.

Selectmen voted unanimously Monday to charge the Andover Housing Partnership Committee with doing just that, and to report back to them by fall Town Meeting time next year with such a plan.

The need has become more acute since some housing in town that was restricted to affordable prices for 20 years is now market rate. Susan Stott of Andover Community Trust, says some of those units are in Abbot Pond.

"We need some mechanism in place so that affordable housing remains affordable for

Clowning around — Coach Bonnie Spurr plays with Michael Farah (hiding between her legs) and other kids participating in the new Challenger Soccer League. With winter approaching, there is now talk of a basketball league as well.

Their best foot forward

When soccer season rolled around this fall, 12-year-old Tommy Arrigg put his best foot forward. With the help of his father, Fred Arrigg, Tommy launched a Challenger-style soccer league.

For the past six Sundays, young players from the Andover Soccer Association have been paired with special needs kids at the small soccer field near Shawsheen Square. The young athletes help the special needs kids play fun, soccer-related games.

"It's absolutely fabulous to watch. They become instant friends," says Arrigg, of Farnham Circle. "They're totally into it. It's just a lot of fun."

He says the weekly games will continue another week, as some of the players get ready for a unified soccer program that's part of the Special Olympics, to be held Nov. 7 at Governor Dummer.

But Andover's Challenger soccer program started with a simple idea. As a Little League player, Tommy Arrigg had seen what a hit the Challenger baseball program was with both his friends and the special needs players. He figured that a similar program could work for soccer.

"I went to the board of the (Andover) Soccer Association and asked if we could do it and they said, 'Yeah, sure!'" says Tommy.

After he got the ASA's approval, Tommy says he called parents of special needs kids, and his soccer-loving friends and told them about the idea. Now, about a dozen special needs kids are paired each Sunday with "buddies." Those involved are typically aged anywhere from 5 to 14, and are directed by youth soccer coach Bonnie Spurr, of Lucerne Drive.

Before each weekly gathering, Tommy still picks up the phone to make sure every special needs player will have at least one buddy who can help him or her play.

"We play all kinds of crazy games, all involving a soccer ball, and then we have a scrimmage at the end," says Bonnie Spurr. "In my mind, it's been the best program that I've been involved with."

While Spurr gives credit for the program's popularity to the Arriggs, they say she is responsible for the success of the weekly sessions.

"I'd probably call her the best youth soccer coach in Andover," says Fred Arrigg, who is also a youth soccer coach. "I've never seen anybody like her in my life. The way she works with these kids and the patience that she has, the way she gets them to pay

NEWS IN BRIEF

Got an old computer? Help the schools

The Andover Fund for Education is once again urging Andover residents who are buying new computers to donate their old machines to the public schools.

This six-year-old project, supported by the Andover Schools' Technology Department, has provided thousands of dollars worth of computers, printers, software, and other types of peripherals to the school department. School technology director Ray Tode, who supervises the placement of the computers in the schools, asks that the equipment carry the following specifications:

Macintosh donations should be Power Macs or better, with 225Mhz minimum operating speed, at least two gigabytes on the hard drive and 32 megabytes of RAM. IBM donations should be Pentium 200 or better, with two gigabytes on the hard drive and SVGA screens. Printers should be LaserWriters or better. All equipment should be in good working order.

Donors will not only make a contribution to public education in Andover, but will earn a significant tax deduction as well. Call AFE board member Gerry Gustus at 475-1699 to arrange for pick-up.

The Andover Fund for Education is a non-profit organization that seeks to improve the quality of public education in Andover by funding projects beyond the reach of the school system budget. The group meets on the first Wednesday of each month. Meetings are held on the third floor of the School Administration building.

Finegold sets office hours

Rep. Barry R. Finegold will hold office hours Thursday, Nov. 4, from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. and 6 to 7 p.m. at Memorial Hall Library at Elm Square.

Web poll results

Last week's question on the Townsmen's Web page was, Should state legislators allow a casino in Salisbury, or anywhere else in the region?

With 21 online voters weighing in, the a relatively close majority of 12-9 said no.

This week's question is: Should the Andover Center Association ask police to block off the Main Street business district during a Friday rush hour next year, and reestablish the Downtown Trick-or-Treat?

Surf to www.andovertownsmen.com and cast your vote.

Flu clinic set

The Andover Board of Health has scheduled an additional influenza immunization clinic for persons who were not able to get the shot at the Oct. 14 clinic. Shots will be administered Monday, Nov. 1, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at the Andover Senior Center on Whittier Court. Preregistration is not required.

The vaccination is indicated for persons older than 60 and/or persons with certain chronic conditions or diseases.

Residents 65 years of age and older should bring their health insurance card to the clinic. The flu shot is free regardless of insurance status.

For the record

A story about an appeal of a decision by the Ballardvale Historic District Commission to allow Perry Raffi to erect a stockade fence around part of his property at 13 Center St. ("Ballardvale fence is appealed," Townsmen, Oct. 21), may have implied that the fence now in place is a stockade fence. The fence erected to date is temporary. It is not a stockade fence, and does not block vision.

In the same story, one resident was quoted as saying that four neighboring properties of 13 Center St. all abut AVIS land. Raffi says, and a real estate map shows, that only one of those four properties actually abuts AVIS land.

attention, is really remarkable."

Spurr gets the special needs players' attention by involving a soccer ball in familiar games such as Red Light, Green Light and Follow the Leader.

Tommy says one of everyone's favorite games is "Bulldog," in which kids try to steal a soccer ball from whomever is controlling it.

"I'd never really worked with special needs kids before," says Spurr. "I said, 'Fred, how should I treat these kids?' A father came up and he said, 'Treat them like they are any other kid.' That was the best advice he could give, and that's exactly what we've done."

Spurr says the program is great because it gives parents a chance to relax, and kids a chance to form new friendships or volunteer their time.

"It's cute. I notice some weeks that some kids will ask, if someone they've played with before couldn't make it that week, 'Isn't So-and-So coming today?'" says Spurr. "They're just great kids. (The special needs players) are full of a lot of love. It's rewarding just because you can feel that."

"It's a lot of fun. I love it," says Tommy. "When they see you, they just come up and give you hugs."

Soon, there may be more reason for hugs.

Another Challenger-style program could be bouncing this way.

"There's already talk of doing something in the winter," says Arrigg.

"Fred has asked me if I know how to bounce a basketball," confirms Spurr. "I don't know where we'll go from here."

Building bridges at Temple Emanuel

Two representatives of Selimiye Mosque in Methuen will speak at Temple Emanuel, 7 Haggetts Pond Road, Sunday, Oct. 31, at 11 a.m. Shaban Chatalbash, a member of the Moslem community, and Professor Zeki Sari Toprak will speak about the Moslem faith and efforts in Turkey to aid victims of the recent earthquake.

According to Rabbi Robert S. Goldstein, spiritual leader of Temple Emanuel, this program represents an important move towards Moslem/Jewish understanding. The prevailing impression is of Jews and Moslems in conflict, when in fact there are many areas of mutual understanding and cooperation.

The program is open to all. For more information, call the temple office at 470-1356.

require stitches and broke a finger.

It wasn't as though Downs was being reckless. His wife says he wanted to get something in a garage loft, and waited until she got home so she could hold the ladder.

"But when he got up there (to the loft), I think a board was loose or something, and down he came," she says.

She says he is expected to make a full recovery, but still doesn't know for sure when he will be home from Lawrence General Hospital, where he is wearing what is known as a "halo," which immobilizes the neck.

"The kids are telling him he looks like the Statue of Liberty," Bunny Downs says, adding that all of the current selectmen have called to wish him a speedy recovery.

"We really appreciate how kind everybody has been," she says, "and we're very glad he's going to be OK."

'Lost' boy found at friend's house

A miscommunication led to a parents' nightmare for the Sievers family of Salem Street on Friday, before their son was located safely at a friend's house.

When Nicholas Sievers, 10, did not board his usual bus and arrive at his usual destination, Camp Evergreen, his father, Anthony Sievers, sprang into action, but was stuck in traffic in the South Station Tunnel on the way home from work.

Before his wife left for an out-of-town conference, the parents had neglected to clear up their son's plan for that day, Sievers says.

While Nicholas was safe at a friend's house, Andover Police, State Police and the North Andover Canine Unit scoured the neighborhood around the Bancroft School looking for him.

"The school and the camp both responded right away, and I started calling around. Then I called police," Sievers says.

"I can't say enough about everybody," Sievers says, adding that while he was stuck in traffic, neighbors manned the phones at his home to help track down the boy.

"It really made me thankful for everybody around here," Sievers says, a resident of Andover for five years.

"We had a pretty good search going for a while," says Lt. James Hashem of the attempted rescue, which lasted more than three hours.

The Sievers eventually discovered, by making phone calls, that the boy was with an old friend on a visit that had been scheduled by parents.

Credit card theft is low-risk, high-yield, say police

By Neil Fater

Police don't expect the Oct. 15 arrest of Frank Caputo, a Billerica man who's allegedly been stealing credit cards from the Andover/North Andover YMCA, to significantly slow the rate of plastic pilfering in town.

That's because many criminals are charging into the potentially low-risk, high-reward field of credit card theft.

"(Caputo's) one of many. There will be a credit card stolen at the YMCA or another health club in town within a few weeks," says Det. Sgt. Don Pattullo. "He even admitted he knows a lot of people who are doing it. He says he's been down there about 15 or 20 times in the last several years."

It might seem that the best way to help slow the stealing is for residents to stop leaving their wallets in unsecured lockers that strangers can enter. But even that didn't stop Caputo's alleged theft on Sept. 7.

Police say in that instance, Caputo entered a locker being used by James Walsh, of Lawrence, and took his car keys. By using the car's remote alarm, Caputo was able to find the car, enter it, and take a credit card from Walsh's wallet. He later returned the keys to the Walsh's locker, and used the card to purchase a $1,400 television, says Pattullo.

"It's happening more and more during the past few years. A lot of the older criminals are trying to get away from the violent crimes and (commit) the crimes that don't directly affect a particular person," says Pattullo.

There are several reasons Pattullo believes credit-card theft is attractive to criminals.

Because credit-card owners only have to pay a nominal fee for a stolen credit card, and credit-card companies are able to write off the cost of illegally purchased items, many departments give priority to other crimes, he says.

"When you go into somebody's house, there's the potential for violence," says Pattullo. "A lot of times the stuff that's taken out of the home is jewelry or silver that was handed down from grandparents. So we tend to take that a little more seriously."

"Not that we don't take credit-card theft seriously, but it's stealing a piece of plastic. There's no value to it. Where the value comes in is when they go up to the Burlington Mall or Salem and use it to buy something," he says. "But we don't have jurisdiction there."

Because the person who steals the card is often not the same person who used the card in another town, Pattullo notes, "We're putting time and effort into this to figure out who this guy is (who used the card), and we're not going to be able to charge the guy."

"The bad guys know this, so they steal it in one place and they go to another place to use it," he says.

Another possible reason for the rise in credit-card theft is that criminals know they face little punishment for the theft of the card itself. Pattullo says stealing a pair of sunglasses can carry more jail time than taking a card that could be used to illegally purchase thousands of dollars in merchandise.

If a person went into a health club and took prescription sunglasses valued at more than $250, state law would allow the person to be put away for up to five years, he says.

But the theft of a credit card carries only a misdemeanor charge. The thief would face no more than a $500 fine and not more than one year in jail.

Someone must be caught actually using the card before he or she faces more significant jail time.

"What has to be done is, the laws have to be changed," says Pattullo. "There are a lot of laws that aren't written correctly. They make it difficult to prosecute people, and the bad guys know it."

Pattullo says Caputo was caught because the YMCA has installed a surveillance camera within last few months. Police were able to enhance the film from the camera to create a photo of Caputo. When Caputo returned to the Y on Oct. 15, the Y's director recognized him and called police.

State to help towns with trash bills

State environmental officials and legislators announced yesterday that the state will set aside $3 million to help NESWC towns pay for their skyrocketing trash disposal costs.

Andover's share, at $120,000, is about 4 percent of its $3.3-million trash bill.

Secretary of Environmental Affairs Robert Durand, and NESWC caucus co-chairs state Rep. Barry Finegold, D-Andover, and Sen. Bruce Tarr, R-Gloucester, were among those making the announcement at the Statehouse.

The $3-million award will come from the Fiscal-Year 1999 Capital Supplemental Budget.

The money will be distributed to towns based on the percentage of tons they send to the incinerator in North Andover, according to Shawn Worster, executive director of NESWC.

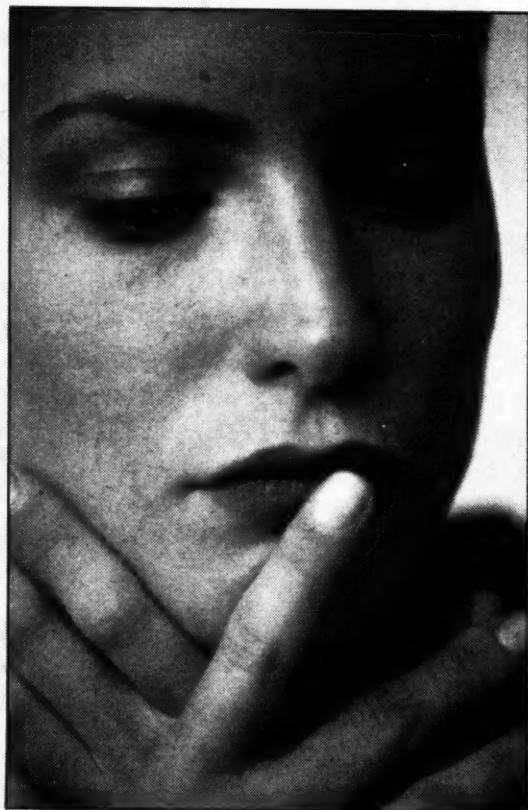

Of the trash sent to the NESWC plant from all 23 towns, Andover sends about 6 percent, and North Andover sends 4 percent.

The 23 NESWC towns pay nearly twice market rate to dispose of their trash, in order to pay off debt incurred when the incinerator was built. Andover, North Andover, Dracut and Tewksbury are all part of NESWC.

Finegold receives Fenn award

Andover state Rep. Barry Finegold has been selected as a recipient of the Fenn Award for Political Leadership, the John F. Kennedy Library and Museum announced last week.

State Rep. Rachel Kaprielian, D-Water-town, is the other recipient.

Co-sponsored by the John F. Kennedy Library's New Frontier Society and Massachusetts Municipal Association, the award is given annually to a Massachusetts elected official aged 35 years or younger who has demonstrated outstanding political leadership. This is the first year the Fenn Award will be shared by two recipients.

The award was formally presented to Kaprielian and Finegold Tuesday, Oct. 26, at the Kennedy Library and Museum.

Finegold was selected in part for his leadership in bringing together legislators and officials from New Hampshire and Massachusetts to address the traffic congestion on I-93 that links the Merrimack Valley to the Greater Boston area. The opening of the breakdown lane on this particularly clogged stretch of I-93 has improved the flow of traffic during peak commuting hours.

"The members of the New Frontier Society share President Kennedy's conviction that one person can make a difference and that every person should try," said Michelle Kane Foerster, coordinator of the program. "We are pleased to join with the Mass Municipal Association in honoring representatives Kaprielian and Finegold."

"The John F. Kennedy Library is committed to encouraging talented young people to become involved in public affairs," said Brad Gerratt, director of the library. "We believe it is an appropriate way of honoring the memories of John and Robert Kennedy."

The annual award is named in honor of Dan H. Fenn Jr., who served as the first director of the Kennedy Library from 1971 to 1986, and has remained active in public affairs.

Bashing the buttons

Given the recent frenzy over eliminating mercury from the waste stream and from trash incinerator emissions, environmental activists in town were not pleased to learn recently that the town is now pushing the sale of it.

It wasn't intentional, they all agree. But the fact remains that the Andover 2000 Millennium buttons on sale all over town to raise money for the town's 1999 New Year's Eve celebration have a little light, powered by a switch that contains mercury.

Anne Wein, chairperson of the League of Women Voters Trash Committee, which has done considerable study on the mercury issue, admits to "being rather cross about the whole thing."

She and Norman Viehmann, also a member of the Trash Committee and the town's Recycling Committee (Wein is on the Recycling Committee as well), say the issue is serious enough that the town should stop selling them and return them to the manufacturer, to be replaced by a button that is mercury-free.

"This is a chance for the town to set the example," Viehmann says. "This is a time to bite the bullet, and make a statement that the health of the community is more important than money."

But John Doherty, the town's veteran's agent and also chairman of the local Millennium Committee, says as long as people don't bite the button, they should be just fine.

"We are certainly aware of the situation.

We are going to tell people that the switches contain mercury and provide disposal areas in the downtown for them," he says.

The Millennium Committee hopes people will keep the buttons as souvenirs, he says, but if they don't "we will publicize plenty of places for them to dispose of them properly."

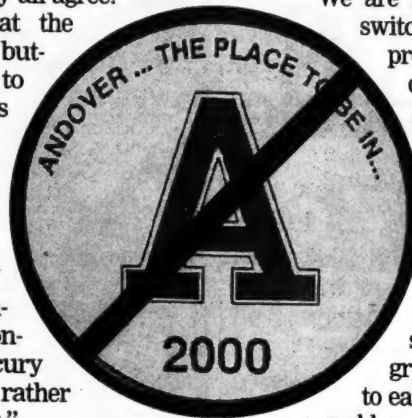

To say that they pose any serious danger, he says, "is a gross exaggeration. You'd have to eat one of them to really cause a problem. We certainly didn't design them as an insult to the environment."

Wein and Viehmann say if the buttons can't be recalled, they should at least be labeled, but they say local officials have said labeling is not practical, since the buttons are not very large.

"We still believe they should offer an alternative," Wein says. "One of the big issues right now is the toxicity of trash, and this simply adds to that."

Make housing truly affordable

It should be clear enough by now that a rising economic tide does not lift all boats. It didn't happen in the go-go '80s, and it's not happening now, as the Planning Board, Board of Selectmen and Andover Housing Authority agree.

So it is good that those boards also agree that the town needs the proverbial "multi-faceted" plan to provide at least some housing within the price range of those whose Internet start-up IPOs haven't just made them multi-millionaires.

Andover has done relatively well, given its status as one of the state's wealthier communities, to provide subsidized housing for elders on fixed incomes, or for the poor.

But, as many who grew up in town and are now trying to buy a house here are finding out, it's tougher for those who are working, making a decent living, but are not wealthy. Their incomes are too high to qualify for subsidies, and much too low to purchase one of the mansions now sprawling throughout town.

It has been made even harder in recent years because the restrictive covenants on "affordable" housing created two decades ago have expired, in many cases. So those units are now selling for "market" prices — out of reach for middle- and lower-income families.

That should be instructive to the Andover Housing Partnership Committee — the group charged with creating a plan to expand housing opportunities.

Sure, one way to avoid that problem would be to try to build in covenants that would restrict the price of certain housing in perpetuity.

But another way, one that wouldn't expire after 20 years, is to simply make such housing more affordable by design.

There is no way to make sure everybody lives in a house just as nice as the next person. There will always be inequities in housing.

But a home that is functional and decently equipped, but modest, is likely to continue to sell at a relatively modest price.

Most of the middle- and lower-income people who want to live in Andover aren't demanding to live here in luxury. They just want to live here.

So the plan should be to give them something they can afford without government support, and that someone like them can also afford 20 years from now, even at "market" prices.

An extra helping of life's little ironies

Taylor Armerding

Yes, life is full of ironies, but it seems that Andover got hit with a few particularly good ones in recent days. Drum roll please ...

Irony 1: Well, what should we expect? It is trick-or-treat season, after all.

It's just that at this much kinder and gentler end of the millennium, we all expect nothing but treats from just about every situation. We like to think that the bad old era of tricks is behind us now, because it is so divisive and uninclusive.

And that's what makes it so maddening that the Andover Center Association has pulled the meanest trick of all by canceling the traditional trick-or-treat afternoon for kids in the downtown — with barely a week's notice, yet.

How can the merchants call themselves community minded and do such a thing? What are parents going to do, after promising their little ones they'd have a bag full of sweets from hitting Main Street Friday afternoon? And what's one afternoon of mild inconvenience a year for merchants, when you consider how much goodwill it generates? Don't these people understand marketing? Who's going to want to shop there anymore?

Well, let's all take a deep breath, get our heart rates down to something less than 80 percent of aerobic maximum and think it through.

None of the Main Street merchants have asked to be defended in this highly influential corner of the newspaper. I suspect they're all hoping this issue will disappear quietly and everybody will start talking about Veterans Day or Thanksgiving.

Perhaps it will disappear quickly, if not quietly. But before it does, those who think the merchants are being uncaring or greedy should try to see both sides of the matter. Because the local business owners have found themselves on the "trick" end of things as well.

There is little doubt that if the event had remained as it was originally envisioned, it would be going on tomorrow as traditionally scheduled, and everybody would be happy.

The idea, as the ACA's Tom Keefe explained, was to fill a void created six years ago when the police canceled the regular evening trick-or-treat time because of a scare about sickos putting things like poison or razor blades in the treats they handed out to kids.

The merchants stepped into the gap, offering to let parents bring their small children downtown for a couple of hours on a Saturday morning.

What has happened? Well, last year there were lots of cute little kids in costumes trundling around town with mom or dad. But there were also lots of not-so-cute and not-so-little kids careening around the downtown, most of them without mom or dad. There were carloads of kids brought in from area day care centers, with insufficient adult supervision. The numbers were starting to overwhelm the business district. And besides that, it was rush hour.

It clearly had become a safety issue. Merchants started having a problem stocking enough candy for an army of 1,500 — three times what they thought the maximum would be.

So if we're looking to place blame for the demise of a budding downtown tradition, there is plenty to go around. Yes, the merchants should have tried to figure out an alternative sooner than last week, or tried to communicate the age limits a bit better.

But as many of them have said privately, once people are in the downtown, they don't want to hear about

No judge or court can silence us

Editor, Townsmen:

We give thanks for having had the opportunity to act in solidarity with the innocent victims of war in Yugoslavia and Iraq when we blocked the entrance to the Raytheon plant in Andover last May. We dedicate our time in jail to them and pray for an end to their suffering.

Just over a year before our action, our sister, Lauren Cannon, who acted with us at Raytheon, stood in a Baghdad hospital talking with Ima Nouri, the mother of a dying child. Her 2-year-old son, Mustafa, had gotten sick from drinking dirty water because the U.S. had bombed the water treatment plant in their town. Chances are that the bomb was made by Raytheon, which makes most of the bombs we drop on Iraq.

Because of the sanctions, the hospital had no antibiotics, and so Mustafa's kidney failed, and he fell into a coma. Looking into Lauren's eyes, Ima Nouri told her that if American mothers could feel the pain and grief that she felt, the bombing and the sanctions would end.

Last week, in Lawrence District Court, Judge Melahn refused to allow Lauren to tell that story or to uphold the international laws that ban war on civilians. But no court and no jail can silence us, and we call on people everywhere to add their voices to ours and demand that Raytheon stop selling our government weapons that kill and maim children in Iraq and around the world.

Help a family in need

Editor, Townsmen:

Seven years ago Karen Wittbold was diagnosed with cancer, and after months of chemotherapy and radiation, she underwent a bone marrow transplant. At the same time, her then 6-year-old son, Sean, was also diagnosed with cancer, and after months of chemotherapy and radiation, he also had a bone marrow transplant. Though Karen and Sean are cancer-free today, they continue to deal with the damaging effects of chemotherapy and radiation.

In addition, Karen's husband of 22 years, Bill, was diagnosed with lung cancer in April 1998. After 14 months of chemotherapy, Bill died this June at age 47. Besides Sean, Karen has six other children to take care of, a home to run and bills to pay. She works part time, but, her challenges are great.

In honor of the Wittbold family, I will be running in my first marathon on Nov. 14, 1999 — the OceanState Marathon in Rhode Island. The OceanState, like all marathons, is 26.2 miles long. It will be the greatest physical challenge in my life.

Yet as challenging as it will be, it does-

Family will miss the downtown trick-or-treat

Editor, Townsmen:

As I've grown older and started life as a parent in the town of Andover, I have slowly grown disillusioned with the "town" part. Growing up in Andover, I have fond memories of parades, Clown Town, the Bazaar Days, Christmas Family Night and numerous other celebrated occasions.

The world has changed so much in my 30-something years. It has become an unsafe place with many things to worry about. The town of Andover has continually held with traditions and family outings, providing many opportunities for families to gather, celebrate and play in the downtown area.

Why is it we can close Main Street for Bazaar Days, parades throughout the year and Andover's 350th celebration (just to name a few) but when the downtown trick-or-treating with the merchants became a traffic/safety issue, it was canceled rather than confined?

Last year, as I trick-or-treated with my two young boys, I heard numerous merchants (and parents) marvel at how big the turnout was. Understandably so, when you have large groups of people dressed up, it creates an upset to the normal routine, but the majority of participants were the very young, taking advantage of the safety with the daylight, sidewalks and parental control.

Wouldn't it make sense to keep such a precious outing part of Andover's traditions? Safe trick-or-treating for the very young surely wasn't something every town offers. Couldn't the merchants agree to close the street for one more occasion?

With a little thought, control and set hours, it could have worked, giving the very young the chance to have fun without the dangers of traditional hours. Even a street party with the street closed would have been a fun alternative for the youngest goblins. Merchants may even benefit from parents shopping.

It's a sad comment that the merchants chose to do away with something valuable rather than rethink an idea that created a positive solution to today's society.

Our family will miss the Downtown Merchant trick-or-treating.

Thank you in advance.

Judge made peace activists into martyrs

Editor, Townsmen:

On Oct. 13, Judge William E. Melahn, of the Lawrence District Court, sentenced six peace activists to serve 30 to 45 days in jail for trespassing. The trespassers, acting from the examples of Mahatma Gandhi and Martin Luther King, Jr., were indeed guilty of blocking traffic to the Raytheon weapons plant on May 27, 1999. These people marched onto Raytheon territory with a message to stop the widespread violence of nuclear weapons, whether the violence is committed against a civilian or a Chinese embassy. These activists were not expecting worldwide disarmament when they walked through the courtroom door that Wednesday morning, but they were at least expecting some form of justice.

It is unacceptable that a 19-year-old woman who had her first run-in with the law during a peace action should spend 30 days among rapists and thieves. Two nurses are jailed among those who take lives. Judge Melahn incarcerated six citizens who do community service every day out of the goodness of their own hearts. I do not consider that justice.

As Judge Melahn himself said, "We live in land of laws, not a land of men." But America would not be where it is today if it were not for good men and women challenging injustice in their society. As Martin Luther King Jr. stated, "One must remember that the cause of the demonstration is some exploitation or form of oppression that has made it necessary for men of courage and good will to demonstrate against the evil."

I have nothing but admiration for those who sacrifice themselves out of pure love to stop pain for others. But I am disappointed with a judicial system that makes peace activists into martyrs.

For ed reform, spend on direct services

Editor, Townsmen:

As an educator of almost 20 years and a parent of elementary-aged children, I was saddened and disgusted by the article in the Boston Globe on Monday, Oct. 18, titled "Education reform funds may be cut."

Unfortunately, those with the power to make changes in education don't seem to understand where the money should be "poured." Millions have been spent, under the guise of education reform, on insignificant and unimportant agendas rather than on direct services for the children of Massachusetts.

The money was partially spent on a 14-hour test, the MCAS, that was developed, promoted, distributed and corrected using hundreds of thousands of the taxpayers' dollars.

This test is inappropriate in terms of reading levels, length and curriculum expectations. For example, fourth-grade students were tested at seventh-, eighth- and even 10th-grade levels on some questions. The test doesn't take into consideration the needs of students in special education or immigrants with limited English ability.

This is how students, teachers, schools, and even school districts are being judged? This test helps improve education? I think not. Furthermore, if public school students must pass the MCAS in order to graduate from high school, then students in private schools should have to as well.

I propose that public officials should have to pass the MCAS in order to be allowed to serve the public. I also propose that anyone who is seeking to make educational policy be required to teach in public schools for one year first; only then will he/she truly understand the needs of the schools in our state.

Many thousands have also been spent on setting up and implementing a system where teachers have to earn Professional Development Points (PDPs) in order to be recertified every five years. Most of us already have at least a master's degree, if not two, or even a doctorate. We know how valuable continued education is. We don't need "education reform" dictating that we take unnecessary workshops just to fulfill PDP requirements.

Education reform should demand reduced class size for every class. Education reform should demand that school systems bring back the important programs that have been cut altogether or severely cut back over the years. It should demand state-of-the-art computer programs in every school system. It should demand a comfortable, safe, clean environment with appropriate equipment for students and staff in every school in the commonwealth. It should demand appropriate substitute coverage so students don't lose valuable educational time when their teachers are absent.

Let's stop pretending education is being reformed by the current design. Let's truly reform education by putting money into direct services for the students. Rather than continue to bash public schools, let's celebrate the good job public schools do.

Broad-brush ridicule

Editor, Townsmen:

I am very sorry to say that I was offended by Jack Grady's column, "Goin' South for some armchair anthropology," in last week's Townsmen. In a world full of prejudice, "ethnic cleansing" and other divisions, we do not need the kind of broad-brush ridicule for a particular group (Virginians) expressed by Mr. Grady.

If he would open his eyes, he would realize that there are Civil War memorials in many towns on both sides of the Mason-Dixon line, including Andover's own Memorial Hall Library.

He would also notice people wearing camouflage fabric, or sporting tattoos and beards, or buying nightcrawlers, or speaking with a variety of regional accents.

And if the man with the tattoo had taken one look at Mr. Grady and burst out laughing, perhaps Mr. Grady would have felt differently about the situation.

Maybe I am overly sensitive because I was born and raised in Virginia. However, I have traveled widely enough to know that there are people similar to me and people different from me in most places, and that is what makes the world interesting. I sincerely hope that Mr. Grady will enjoy his next visit to Virginia more than his last.

Pumpkin thieves are the real losers

Editor, Townsmen:

This letter is for people responsible for stealing the large pumpkin from our yard late Saturday evening on Oct. 23.

I know it was more than one person who stole our pumpkin because it weighed 265 pounds. Whoever you are, you had help and it's not important that we find out who you are nor do we expect the pumpkin to be returned, as in all likelihood it's probably smashed or, at best, has suddenly appeared somewhere else.

You should know, however, that you didn't rob us of the pleasure we had watching it grow from seed these past four months; nor does it take away the joy we had of training the vines to grow where we needed them to be; nor did you lessen our efforts at hand-watering it and fertilizing it each week.

We even had fun setting up traps for the mice that would have found it too tempting not to take a few delicious bites from it.

We gained the knowledge of how to carefully cut certain tap roots along the vine to relieve stress on the pumpkin stem. We even enjoyed the excitement of measuring it every week to chart its weight gain until it was time to harvest it. We are also very grateful for the opportunity of meeting, sharing and learning from many other people who were also growing giant pumpkins.

The rewards for all our efforts paid off when we entered our pumpkin in the Sandwich Fair in New Hampshire on Columbus Day weekend and it took the blue ribbon for being the largest.

We do feel badly, however, for all our neighbors and their children who have been walking by, stopping to see it and even coming back to take pictures of their children with this pumpkin. They are the ones who have been robbed of the pleasure of enjoying this pumpkin, not to mention all the many cars that have stopped in the street to get a good look at the 265-pound wonder.

I feel sorry for the thieves because they are the real losers. They conducted their actions under cover of darkness, like most thieves do. Unfortunately, the rewards for the thieves' behavior can only be shared in secret and with a guilty conscience, if they, in fact, still have one. Shame on you, whoever you are.

Doherty is overstuffed

Editor, Townsmen:

Bursting at the seams, overstuffed, filled to the gills, ready to burst — these are all words I would use to describe the overcrowded situation our children endure every day at Doherty Middle School. Excellent staff and wonderful children also come to mind when I think of Doherty. One at the expense of the other.

A few weeks ago, I had the distinct "pleasure" of being present in the sixth-grade hallway as the classes were released after second period.

The sea of children that filled that hallway and kept coming made safe passage nearly impossible. The children were wall-to-wall and elbow-to-elbow. There was no room for a dropped book or anything else.

As a new parent to Doherty, I was aware of the overcrowding but had no idea it was to this extent. It was an unbelievable sight.

The morning routine our children experience speaks to the overcrowding as well. They arrive sometime after 7 a.m. and begin their pilgrimage to find an available spot to sit and wait for school to start. They begin at the library, but it is full already, not a chair unoccupied. Next the cafeteria, but sorry, all the seats are taken. On to the various teachers' rooms, who have unselfishly opened up their classrooms to accommodate the overflow of children waiting for the bell to ring. This is how their day begins.

There are more than 750 students who attend Doherty every day. The school building has a capacity of 600, as decided by the School Committee.

Doherty Middle is bursting at the seams. It strikes fear in my heart as to what would happen if they ever had to close off a wing of the school or evacuate the school in an emergency.

This is a problem that cannot wait, not for the new schools, not for anything.

Students fold cranes for peace

By Rebecca Lipchitz

While much of Andover may be out partying to ring in the new millennium, some Andover residents will be wishing for a more peaceful transition.

Rosemarie Webb, art specialist at the Sanborn School, has rallied Andover students and art teachers to create a collective wish for peace in the new century, expressed in thousands of paper cranes folded by students themselves.

Since Webb challenged every Andover school, public and private, to fold 1,000 origami Cranes for Peace, students have been spotted folding in their spare time, and cranes have even appeared made of math tests. Webb's hope is to have 12,000 cranes to string about town on Jan. 1, 2000.

This hope includes dry weather for New Year's Day, to display the paper cranes outdoors.

This year, Sanborn School students, and some former Sanborn students now in middle school, helped fold another 850 cranes, and expect to have made 2,000 cranes by the end of the year.

While the peace crane project is designed to incorporate the geometry of paper-folding with some historical and cultural lessons into art class, Webb stresses, as she demonstrates the technique, that the most important part of folding a peace crane is the moment one stops to make a wish before the last step.

Abigail Wheelwright, a sixth-grader at West Middle School and former Sanborn student, says when she stops to make her wish for peace she often remembers how much she has to be grateful for.

Laura Ouellette, also a former Sanborn student now at West Middle, says her wishes for peace include prayers for a relative battling cancer.

The lesson about the significance of peace cranes distributed to all the schools, Webb says, was inspired by a book called Sadako, by Eleanor Coerr and Ed Young, about a young girl, Sadako Sasaki, who survived the bombing of Hiroshima, but later died of leukemia.

Webb identified with the story, especially when she realized that if Sadako were alive today, they would be the same age.

Cranes are now being folded in almost every Andover school, especially at Andover High School, where more than 17 teachers and staff members are participating.

Webb says she hopes every school will string 1,000 cranes and hang them in front of their building on New Year's Day as a symbol of wishes for world peace.

Schools that meet the challenge will receive a copy of Sadako for their school library.

Sadako Sasaki died on October 25, 1955. Before she died she folded 644 cranes for peace, and after her death friends and family folded 356 so that she would be buried with 1,000 cranes.

A memorial in her honor at the Hiroshima Peace Park in Japan reads "This is our cry, this is our prayer: Peace in the world."

School councils prepare for presentations

School council members across Andover are preparing their annual school improvement reports for a November presentation to the School Committee.

The creation of school councils, required by the Education Reform Act of 1993, is an effort to allow those most connected with each school the chance to say what they believe needs to be improved.

"It's certainly been a good way to get parents and staff working together, and it's a wonderful way to present something to the School Committee, showing there has been a lot of thought," says West Elementary Principal Charlie Friel.

Each principal serves on his or her school council, along with parents, teachers, community members and, at the secondary level, students.

This combination of representatives, according to the state Department of Education, "provides the school with different and mutually complementary perspectives on its improvement goals and plans."

The number of council members and the length of their membership is determined by the principal, but state law requires that not more than 50 percent of the council members be "non-school" members — those who are not parents of students at the school, teachers or administrators at the school.

Members are elected by parents or teachers, or appointed by the principal.

Parents are elected by members of the school's PTO, and teachers are elected by the teachers at the school. Non-school members may be recruited by principals directly or selected by the organizations that are invited to send representatives to the council.

Andover DARE Officer CeeCee Blais of the Andover Police Department serves as a community member representative at the Doherty Middle School. Blais says her work in classrooms as the DARE officer gives her an advantage in understanding the needs of the school, how teams of classes work and other issues, but much of the council's time is spent wrestling with the space crunch.

While two new schools — a middle school and an elementary school — are expected to relieve crowded classrooms by 2002, the lack of classroom space can't be ignored in the meantime, Blais says.

"It continues to be an issue," she says.

The council is responsible for assisting the principal in adopting educational goals for the school, identifying educational needs of students, reviewing the annual

This school year's Senior Safari (SS2K), the all-night, substance-free graduation celebration, will be held in the Field House.

This larger space will require additional decorations and activities.

This year's organizers are committed to raising funds through activities in an effort to avoid asking Andover businesses for donations to help produce the event, which generally costs about $16,000.

Tom Edmonds' historic Andover era ends

By Rebecca Lipchitz

"I hate to say it," says long-time Andover Historical Society board member Karen Herman, "but sometimes in this field, it can get a little boring."

Such has not been the plight of Andover, however, since Tom Edmonds, curator of the Andover Historical Society, arrived in 1993.

But that era ended this week, when Edmonds spent his last day at the Society, before leaving to become director of the Whistler House Museum of Art in Lowell.

"He had a huge impact. We are all so sad. Tom really brought the community together. He had a lot of vision," she says.

Edmonds was painting in New York City when he decided to get a degree in museum studies at New York University, a degree that led to his hiring in Andover.

"Painting by myself in my studio, I wasn't really getting anywhere," he says, but says he was instantly charmed by a fall day in New England when he came to an interview in Andover.

As an artist in Andover, Edmonds noted the lack of an artistic center for a town full of artistic talent.

"The first exhibit I had 17 people show up, and they were all board members. I didn't like that," Edmonds says.

In response, he created the Contemporary Artist series of lectures and exhibits to bring local artists and writers together.

"It was a program waiting to happen. And now it's got its own crowd," he says.

Herman says Edmonds' notable achievements also include the creation of Cry Witch, a play about the Andover area's role in the Salem witch trials, a performance that includes actors from Andover to New Hampshire.

"It's more interactive. It's like a living exhibit," he says.

Edmonds also worked closely with Memorial Hall Library Director Jim Sutton to help bring the Society library's collection to the network of libraries in the state, Herman says.

He completed period rooms at the Society, and helped it acquire key items like antique clocks made in Andover, and most recently a portrait from a gallery in New York, Herman says.

"It's largely because of his direction that all of those things happened. He had a particularly unique vision, and he expanded it," she says.

Herman also credits Society director Barbara Thibault for her support of Edmonds' efforts.

"Barbara never put the brakes on Tom, and everything happened in such a wonderful, inclusive way," Herman says.

Edmonds is modest about describing his director and board members.

"They were very lenient with me," he says.

Edmonds says he was drawn to the growing artistic and cultural community in Lowell, and by the city's recent commitment to develop live-in work spaces for artists in the historic downtown area.

For now, Edmonds and his wife Mary Beth, a local screenwriter, still live in the historic Parson Barnard House in North Andover, where he makes himself available for historic tours.

Herman says she is glad that although Edmonds is leaving, he isn't going far.

"He was able to connect right away with people in the Merrimack Valley who make a difference in art," Herman says.

The Society board plans to take Edmonds' leaving as a chance to reexamine their direction before putting together a search committee, but Herman says she hopes the process won't be too long, given the already small staff at the Society.

"We knew we wouldn't have him forever, but he gave us a lot to work with," Herman says.

Lawyers spar some more over Kartell counseling records

By Neil Fater

When Michael Lawler, the marriage counselor for accused murderer James Kartell, applied to become a licensed psychologist he was denied because he failed to pass the necessary test.

That was among the new evidence submitted at a pre-trial hearing Tuesday in Lawrence Superior Court, as lawyers fought over the admissibility of notes that Kartell wrote to Lawler about his failing marriage to Suzan Kamm.

Kartell is accused of shooting his estranged wife's fiancé when both men came to visit Kamm at the Holy Family Hospital.

Lawler's attorney maintains that Kartell's notes to Lawler should be considered confidential, because Lawler is eligible to become a licensed marriage counselor. Lawler has never applied for this type of license — which is different from the license he failed to attain — but has practiced as a counselor for years.

However, when Lawler said Tuesday that he was not granted a license as a psychologist because "I did not pass the exam," Kamm was visibly upset and whispered audibly, "That fraud!"

After the hearing, she charged Lawler with misrepresenting himself because he assumed the title "Doctor" while serving as her and her husband's marriage counselor. Lawler's doctorate is in education.

"It's fraud by concealment," said Kamm, after court adjourned for the day. "People in this state should not be able to carry the title psychotherapist or counselor if they don't have a license."

Three sides to the story

Lawyers are now preparing written briefs to Judge Howard Whitehead on whether Kartell's notes to Lawler should be submitted as evidence. Whitehead does not expect to issue a ruling until at least December.

Assistant DA Fred McAlary said that because Lawler is not licensed as a counselor — and, in McAlary's opinion, cannot prove he's eligible for a license — the notes should not be protected under doctor-patient privilege.

McAlary also indicates the evidence in those notes could be important to the case.

"Based upon the one page of documents in evidence, there's (a mention) that Dr. Kartell has troubles controlling his anger," said McAlary.

Kartell's lawyer, J.W. Carney Jr., argued that the notes should be considered confidential regardless of Lawler's credentials, because Kartell entered the relationship with the assumption of confidentiality.

Carney said that in 1996, Gilbert Bernard, a counselor with no college degree, was granted confidentiality regarding his conversations with state troopers, because over the years hundreds of troopers had gone to him for counseling.

"Up until 10 years ago, privileges were narrowly construed," said Carney. "The courts are (now) more ready to say the confidentiality will be defended, even more so than the defense's chance to pierce that confidentiality."

"Clearly Dr. Kartell and his wife, Dr. Kamm, sought counseling. They sought counseling in a confidential environment," he said. "They sought out someone who for 25 years had been involved in confidential counseling."

McAlary noted that Kamm has testified that no one involved in the sessions ever mentioned confidentiality.

Lawler's counsel Nicholas Theodorou said Lawler has enough experience to meet all the qualifications necessary to receive a license. If Lawler had such a license, he would not have to turn over his files.

Theodorou has spent days in court outlining Lawler's post-graduate education and the hundreds of hours of experience Lawler has in a variety of clinical settings.

Are you experienced?

Lawyers continued to analyze Lawler's experience

Tuesday. Dr. Nina Fieldsteel, Lawler's former supervisor and teacher at the Post Graduate Center in New York, testified for nearly an hour.

Although Judge Whitehead did not allow Fieldsteel to serve as an expert witness regarding whether Lawler has the necessary experience to qualify for a license, she was allowed to speak on the matter.

"As I read the requirements it is my opinion," said Fieldsteel, "that Dr. Lawler would meet the educational and clinical requirements for a license."

The Post Graduate Center is a certificate-granting program.

While working full time in the Boston area, Lawler attended the New York Center one day per week, according to testimony. His program consisted of two 15-week semesters, with about nine hours per week spent on course work and group supervision.

However, Fieldsteel said such a time characterization "minimizes the number of hours" that must be spent to actually earn a certificate.

Fieldsteel said her involvement with Lawler at the Center was limited to teaching him two courses and individually supervising him for a total of 60 hours over two years. She said that all she knows of Lawler's experience outside the Post Graduate Center work, is what Lawler has told her.

Later, McAlary asked Lawler if he had brought any course descriptions, papers, his doctoral thesis or written evaluations to show what type of experience he had attained during his post-graduate studies. Lawler said he had not.

But Lawler noted the court does have both his transcripts and proof that he's received his degrees and certificates.

"In that sense, the court already has the ultimate evaluation," said Lawler.

Kartell watched the proceedings quietly, wearing a blue and green plaid sports jacket and tan pants.

Housing ...

generations to come," she said.

According to a report from the Department of Planning and Community Development, the average assessed value of single family homes in Andover is more than $313,000, and would require a family to have an annual income of more than $80,000.

A little less than half of the single-family homes in town (3,592 of 7,369) are valued at between $200,000 and $300,000. While 824 homes are valued at less than $200,000, the remaining 2,953 single family homes in town are valued at more than $300,000.

Christine Metzemaekers, director of the Andover Housing Authority's subsidized housing units, says many people who want to live in Andover can't afford to buy a house here, but make too much money to qualify for subsidized housing.

"We're turning away a lot of people because they may be over income (limits) but still can't crack the nut of buying a home in Andover. It's a huge group of people. They call our office every day,"

Tax breaks available

Some Andover residents can reduce their property tax bills if they qualify for certain exemptions or deferrals.

One change in tax law that affects many elderly residents is the increase in exemptions for capital gains tax, says attorney Debra Rahmin Silberstein, of Andover.

People older than 55 years who sell their home are now individually entitled to a $250,000 exemption from capital gains tax, and each couple to a $500,000 exemption.

The law is particularly relevant in Andover for people who have lived in town for 30 years and sell their house on today's market, Silberstein says.

"But from what I see, there are plenty of people selling their homes who still can't stay in Andover," she says.

Silberstein presented a list of tax-break programs to selectmen at Monday night's meeting, aimed at elders and the disabled.

Most programs require qualifications such as age, having lived in one's home for at least five or 10 years, or veteran or disabled status.

Some tax-deferral programs allow a resident to have the sale of his or her estate pay for taxes, but that deferred tax bill includes interest of 8 percent.

moderate income is what we should try for," he says. The town does not need large developments of subsidized housing which "categorize" people, he says. "It doesn't let people move forward."

Meanwhile, members of the Housing Partnership Committee in Andover say they've been waiting for an opportunity to address the lack of affordable housing in town.

The AHPC was formed in 1987, and at one time the more than 10 members met weekly, Colyer says. Today they have three members and plan to seek more to begin working on a new strategy.

AHPC member Chris Haynes says there are many people in town who have expertise that could help the committee, and who want to close the gap of affordable housing.

"People are looking for an active forum where they can focus their talents. We've been waiting," he says.

Haynes says AHPC members plan to seek new members and to develop the plan selectmen requested.

Andover's lack of affordable housing is documented in the Housing Report for the Town of Andover, produced by the Department of Community Development and adopted by the Planning Board in 1992.

"We don't need to reinvent the wheel, we just need to add more bodies to the mix," Colyer says.

Stott says she is hopeful that more affordable housing is on the horizon, despite the increasing land costs.

"Land is the key. This is an opportunity to follow through on everything we've talked about," she says.

in the daylight hours," he says. "We started it on a Saturday, but it was really starting to impact the businesses, because even though it was only supposed to be for two hours in the morning, it was going all day long, and parents would get angry if businesses ran out of candy."

"So we moved it to Friday afternoon, but because of the huge numbers, that was becoming a hardship as well."

"Last year we had about 1,500," Becker says, "and it was starting to get out of control. We're not willing to wait until a child gets hurt to do something about it."

Becker says the group didn't consider it practical to close a portion of Main Street during rush hour on a Friday afternoon, and felt that with so many children in the area, an accident was inevitable.

"I've seen kids run right out in the street," Becker says, adding that there are not nearly enough adults to supervise the groups of children.

Pattullo says he told the ACA members that police would "work with whatever you decide," but he agrees that there have been increasing safety concerns, and "we concur with their decision to suspend the event."

Added to that, Becker says, is that the event was originally meant for children aged 8 or younger, whose parents would not want them to go out later in the evening. Now, she says, the age ranges from preschool right up through middle school and even beyond.

Becker and Keefe both add that many of the children in more recent years have been unsupervised. "It's supposed to be parents with their own children, in costumes," she says, "but it's gotten away from that."

Keefe says he knows many parents and children will be disappointed at the decision, but says some may be relieved.

"There were some parents who were saying that we were causing them a hardship," he says, "because they had to get out of work early to do this."

He also notes that the impetus came not from him, but from the ACA membership, "and the vote on it was unanimous."

He says the ACA may try to create an alternative event next year, "but this year, we're just not prepared to do that."

"Instead, we're asking our members to take the money they would have spent on this, and put it into the (Christmas) lighting program. I hope people realize that the ACA sponsors that. It doesn't come from the town."

Lussier feted at Statehouse

Andover Social Studies Teacher David Lussier was honored Tuesday for his appointment as Massachusetts Teacher of the Year 2000 at a banquet in the Great Hall of the Statehouse.

Andover state Rep. Barry Finegold says Andover was well represented at the event, which was also attended by Gov. Paul Cellucci, House Speaker Thomas M. Finneran and Senate President Thomas F. Birmingham.

Lussier attended with his wife and new baby, and Andover Schools were represented by student Lindsey Pearson, School Committee member Dick Collins and Superintendent of Schools Dr. Claudia Bach.

"The only downside is that he's not going to be with us this year," says Finegold.

Lussier's job as Teacher of the Year includes a year's sabbatical to work with the Department of Education and attend speaking engagements across the state.

Area teachers honored yesterday include Mary O'Brien Guerrero of the Henry K. Oliver Elementary School in Lawrence, and Nicole Canniff of North Andover High School.

Lussier was selected from a pool of 400 nominees, and recommended by a selection committee of former teachers of the year, public school administrators, teachers, students, parents and business representatives.

"David Lussier is a superb teacher, who represents a new generation of educators who have recently entered the teaching profession," says Commissioner of Education David P. Driscoll.

Nurses settle contract, but they aren't happy

School nurses, who have been working without a contract since August 1998, signed a three-year contract last week.

That doesn't mean they're happy with it, however. Last spring, the nurses said they wanted pay equal to that of Andover teachers, but this agreement doesn't come close to that, they say.

Karin Taylor, school nurse at Doherty Middle School, says the contract does not address issues nurses hoped to tackle.

"It just doesn't seem right. We are educational professionals, even though the format we teach in is different than a structured classroom," Taylor says.

Taylor is one of four registered nurses who work as school nurses in Andover, along with Sharyn Tate at West Middle School, Mary Moran at Andover High School and Barbara Whiteside, the nurse for elementary schools and director of the Health Education Program.

Each elementary school also has a Licensed Practicing Nurse (LPN), which is not included in the bargaining unit of registered nurses.

School Committee chairman Eric Nadworny, who helped negotiate the contract, says the good thing about recent negotiations is that the town is now committed to working with the nurses as their role changes.

"If it evolves more educationally or medically, we will work to address that together, but we haven't gotten to the specifics," he says.

School Committee member Tina Girdwood, who also negotiated, says the goal in bargaining was to recognize the increased workload of the nurses and provide wages comparable to those in other school districts in the region.

One change in this year's contract, Girdwood says, is that an amount previously awarded to a nurse as a stipend for education beyond a certain level, is now part of each nurse's base salary.

Since the passage of the Education Reform Act of 1993, nurses hired are required to have master's degrees. All four of Andover's school nurses were hired before 1993, Girdwood says.

Taylor says the contract negotiated allowing raises at 3 percent or 3.5 percent is simply cost-of-living, and does not address the growing challenges of being a school nurse.

"That's a cost-of-living increase that keeps our heads above water," she says.

A nurse with a bachelor's degree makes about $25,000, according to state averages, Girdwood says.

Robb ...

With better planning, the selectmen could avoid some of the problems they face and be less of a "reactive" board, he says.

"I feel there's a more assertive role that the selectmen could be taking," says Robb. "Part of it has to do with actually doing things before they turn into an emergency."

Robb says selectmen act too frequently as individuals pursuing separate agendas. He says an inability to come together behind one plan is one reason senior-center advocates had such trouble forming a senior center plan.

"We're seeing the same thing with a youth center now," he says, in reference to Major and Larsen, who are currently pursuing different plans for an Andover youth center.

Robb has been a member of the Finance Committee since 1990, and was a School Committee member from 1979-1989.

"I think I have a pretty good understanding, not just of town finances, but of how the town government works," he says.

Robb wants selectmen to begin budget discussions earlier in the year, and says the Capital Improvement Plan is not a sufficient plan for the town. The CIP is a five-year plan that officials update each year.

"I don't think it does (plan for the future) as well as it should. I think we react rather than plan ahead long-range," says Robb. "We need to have a better handle on where we're going, rather than just doing things from year to year."

Ironies ...

limits, such as that it's only for kids aged 8 and younger, or that they're supposed to be in costume and accompanied by a parent.

"You mean you can give it to my 7-year-old but not my 9-year-old?" parents would demand.

And of course, merchants wouldn't refuse an individual case like that.

But those individual exceptions became the norm. So now they have decided to refuse everybody. And who can blame them? It's just another sad irony of trying to be nice, and finding that when you give an inch, some people will always demand a mile.

***
Irony 2: We're all trying to be environmentalists around here, aren't we? We're all concerned about mercury in the waste stream. And we're all going to stamp our feet and make sure that those guys down at the big, bad incinerator in North Andover don't wiggle out of our tightest-in-the nation limits on mercury emissions.

What? You have a problem with my nice new Andover Millennium button for the big First Night celebration around here? You mean there's mercury in the switch that controls the little light?

Ooops. Never mind.

***
Irony 3: The town is justifiably proud of Andover High teacher David Lussier, who was named the Massachusetts Teacher of the Year in May.

Clearly he is a great ambassador for education and for the town. He should do an outstanding job this year, traveling and speaking on behalf of the public schools, and talking about his teaching methods to other teachers.

Still, what he does best of all, of course, is teach high-school students. That's why he won the big prize.

Isn't it a tiny bit ironic that the reward for being the best teacher in the state is to get pulled out of the classroom for a year?

Short cuts

Neil Fater

Getting egg on your place

To those of you stuck answering the door for the costumed candy grabbers this Sunday, I offer my condolences.

Sadly, I also need to offer a little advice. It seems there are still a handful of clueless people who don't understand even the basic do's and don'ts of Halloween-candy giving.

Fortunately I, an expert in candy eating, can offer a public service message on behalf of the little ones.

Lesson I: No one should refer to Good 'N' Plenty as "candy."

That's like calling Moxie a "delectable beverage," or Larry King "respected."

Give out alleged confections like that and you're guaranteed to hear kids say, "Let's never go back to that house again!"

Lesson II: No one answering a door with a bowl full of sweets should ever utter the words "Help yourself!" to a bunch of anonymous kids on a sugar high.

Otherwise, you're guaranteed to hear kids say, "Let's go back to that house again... and again!"

Lesson III: No one should kid themselves into thinking that Halloween is the day they'll teach strangers' children about the value of a well-rounded diet or good oral hygiene.

In other words, don't give out raisins. If you value your own teeth, don't give out toothbrushes!

Otherwise, you're guaranteed to hear kids say, "Let's go back to that house again... and egg it!"

A first at Rogers Center

Artist Bert Yarborough is exhibiting his work at the new McCoy Gallery at Merrimack College's Rogers Center for the Arts, through Nov. 30. The public is invited to an opening reception for the artist Sunday, Oct. 31, from 2 to 4 p.m.

"Yarborough's work was selected as the first exhibit for its experimental richness as well as its sense of the tradition of the figure within an abstract painting," says a release.

Yarborough received a Fulbright Fellowship in 1984, allowing him to study traditional Yoruban carving in Nigeria. He returned as a painter strongly influenced by the landscape, iconography and ritual of West Africa.

"Much of the work in the college exhibition incorporates past images with his recent, more direct emotional figurative elements. The artists used his own image as the gestural foundation of his imagery in a series of self-portraits included in the show," says a release.

Yarborough is a Hanover, N.H., resident and a teacher at Colby-Sawyer College in New London, N.H., where he also directs the college gallery.

Day of the Dead comes alive at Peabody

By Neil Fater

An Andover museum is planning a Saturday party to wake the dead.

Specifically, the Robert S. Peabody Museum of Archaeology at Phillips Academy is inviting residents to celebrate El Dia de los Muertos, the traditional Mexican holiday of The Day of the Dead, Saturday, Oct. 30, from 6 to 8 p.m.

The museum, at the corner of Main and Phillips streets, will celebrate the joyous holiday with live mariachi music, a cash bar featuring Mexican beer and sangria, food catered by Cafe Azteca in Lawrence and a silent auction of hand-crafted Mexican art work.

"I think people in Andover know us as 'That local Indian museum. It's all about arrowheads.' And actually it's not," says museum director Jim Bradley. "We're really a museum that's interested in people, and the cultures they create."

El Dia de los Muertos is a uniquely Mexican holiday, celebrated in remembrance of the dead, says Bradley. It developed from a combination of Catholic and Aztec beliefs.

"Mexican people have come up with this wonderful way — sort of like an Irish wake — to celebrate their dead," says Bradley. "This is why we look at other cultures. There's lots we can learn from one another."

"They embrace death and make it a friend, and that's not how I was raised to view it," he says.

In Mexico on this day, people visit cemeteries, decorate graves, and build special home altars to honor their departed friends and family. "The altars are piled with offerings to reflect the deceased's favorite things, and to entice them back to the world of the living," according to the museum.

Photos by Lisa Adelsberger

Grateful dead — Mexicans celebrate departed loved ones with Day of the Dead festivities.

As part of the celebration, Mexicans often create skeleton figures that show the skeletons doing the same types of things people do in everyday life.

"It's the celebrating of death, but it's also that acknowledgement that sooner or later we're all going to be there," says Bradley. "You don't want kids to be terrified of dying. It's saying death is a part of life."

The museum plans to build an altar in honor of founder Robert Singleton Peabody, who established the museum in 1901. It encourages people to bring an offering to the celebration.

Traditional offerings include flowers, fruits and vegetables, calaveras (sugar skulls), pan de muertos (sweetbread baked in the shape of bones), chocolate, statues, photographs, and incense. But often people place items on the altar that are more representative of the person being honored.

So what could guests bring to the museum?

"I'd say in Robert Peabody's case, a cigar," says Bradley.

The Day of the Dead event is a benefit for the museum's education program and outreach with Lawrence schools. There is a charge of $15, $10 for museum members.

For reservations, call the museum at 749-4490. Tickets will also be available at the door.

singers sweep in award

Andover residents, Doug Hillman, Chuck Gallant, and Bob Shapiro were on stage in Providence this past weekend, as their Sounds of Concord barbershop chorus won the Northeastern District (NED) Championship for medium-sized choruses. The 34-member chorus finished 4th overall.

The Northeastern District covers New England and Canada's provinces from Quebec eastward.

The Sounds of Concord is recruiting men for its Holiday Chorus, which will perform throughout the region in November and December, and for its regular men's barbershop chorus.

George Washington in Andover lecture by Juliet Mofford at Historical Society

On Tuesday, Nov. 9, at 2 p.m., the Andover Historical Society will present a special program on George Washington, who died 200 years ago this year. He came to Andover in 1789, seven months after being elected the first president of a new nation. He was 57 years old and already worshiped as a hero. More than 6 feet tall, he always maintained a ramrod posture, preferred riding white horses, and wore a white powdered wig.

His tour of the 13 states fulfilled his wish for the new citizens to see their first elected leader as well as his desire to better know his fellow countrymen. He traveled from village to village with cheering crowds lining the roads. In Andover, he stayed at Abbot's Tavern, still standing on Elm Street, where he had breakfast before touring Phillips Academy. Juliet Mofford will discuss his visit as well as why Washington turned into a such a popular cult figure, venerated almost as a god.

Refreshments will be 18th-century syllabub, a wine punch, and Martha Washington's Cake. Admission is $2 for members and $5 for non-members.

Celebrate this special anniversary at the Andover Historical Society, at 97 Main St. Call 475-2236 for more information.

faith and efforts in Turkey to aid victims of the recent earthquake.

According to Rabbi Robert S. Goldstein, spiritual leader of Temple Emanuel, this program represents an important move towards Moslem/Jewish understanding. The prevailing impression is of Jews and Moslems in conflict, when in fact there are many areas of mutual understanding and cooperation.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hoppood, D.M.D., F.A.G.D.

THE SEQUENCE OF BABY TOOTH LOSS

On average, the tooth fairy begins to make regular visits to the children between the ages of 5 1/2 and 6 1/2. The most common sequence in which children of this age will lose their primary teeth is that the lower incisors (the two center teeth) fall out first, followed by the upper two or the two teeth on either side of the lower incisors. In addition, the teeth should fall out bilaterally (first the left, then the right). a delay of more than six months between the loss of one tooth and its corresponding member should prompt an exam by the dentist. Also, if there are no signs that a primary tooth is about to be lost by age seven, x-rays may be in order.

Early dental visits can keep watch on how tooth development is progressing. They are an important part of growing up healthy. When it's time for the first visit, satisfy your children's natural curiosity by telling them that the dentist is first going to count their teeth, then take their picture, clean them, and see that they are healthy. Bring along a doll or stuffed animal and we'll check its teeth, too - free of charge, of course! Dental care for the family is available here at 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133 (with easy access off Rt 93). PH: 475-2431.

P.S. We are all born with the tooth buds for our primary and permanent teeth.

ALL THOSE YEARS AGO

100 Years Ago

If you see it in the Townsmen, it's news to be relied upon; if it is news and so, you'll see it in the Townsmen.

Mrs. William G. Brown picked violets and dandelions on Oct. 24.

Miss Maude Marion Cole presided at the organ in the Seminary Chapel, Sunday morning and afternoon.

George F. Swift is having a dormer window built on the southeast slope of his house on Main Street.

A game of football will be played between the Christ Church choir boys' team and the Church of the Advent team of Boston, at the latter's grounds tomorrow.

Paul R. Burt, the new florist in the Musgrove block, has on exhibition in his window a large model of the successful cup defender, Columbia, made of flowers. It is a pretty and elaborate piece of workmanship and is causing many favorable comments.

The People's Singing Classes are starting off with much interest. Already the Monday afternoon scholars are enthusiastic over their lessons and the increasing numbers in the evening class give promise of good success. The fee is 10 cents per lesson.

Diphtheria is reported to have attacked several people in Andover.

An "on hand" freight receptacle has been built at the American Express office.

Dr. Abbott was run into while driving along North Main Street in Frye Village last Tuesday evening and one wheel was wrenched off by the impact. The perpetrators of the mischief were two boys who were recklessly running their horse and did not turn out at all. They did not stop to find out the damage done by their careless driving.

A very enjoyable "shingle" and dancing party was held at the residence of Miss Minnie Barton on Elm Street in celebration of her 14th birthday. A unique feature of the evening was the serving of refreshments, including ice cream upon a shingle, with another piece of the same to take the place of a spoon. The usual party games and dancing took up the time until a late hour when all departed, wishing the young lady many more such happy anniversaries.

50 Years Ago

The questioning of two Lowell juveniles by police Wednesday in connection with thefts from the poor box at the grotto on the grounds of St. Francis Seraphic seminary in West Andover led to the apprehension of three more Lowell boys for questioning on similar complaints and also about thefts from a Lowell store.

Added impetus to the suggestion of the Townsmen that the 33-foot grass plot on the east side of South Main Street be either altered or removed to eliminate a traffic hazard and bottleneck was received when officials of Phillips Academy came forward with a plan, in existence since 1932, which would provide for a double lane highway with a turf safety island in the center.

Four new reserve policemen were appointed by the board of selectmen at Monday night's meeting. All are veterans and were named in the order they appeared on the civil service list.

The body of Fred E. Schott, 47, of Roslindale was removed from a train at the Andover station early

Taste of Andover coming Tuesday, Nov. 9

The Andover Chamber of Commerce is again sponsoring a Fall "Taste of Andover" event for owners and employees of companies in Andover, as well as the public.

Scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 9, from 6-8 p.m. at Old Town Hall, Taste of Andover will feature hors d'oeuvres, delicacies, desserts and other menu items from nearly a dozen local restaurants and food service facilities.

Participants include Andover Country Club, Andover Inn, Greater Lawrence Technical High School, Indian Ridge Country Club, Ramada Rolling Green Hotel, Raspberries, the Lanam Club, The Blue Cow, Chocolate by Design, Palmer's, Vincenzo's, Wild Harvest, Glory, Larry's Deli and the Wyndham Hotel.

"Once again, we're not going to have any speeches," said organizing committee member Henry Broekhoff, of Andover Inn. "We're hoping to cast our welcoming net as wide as ever, to include not only all Andover businesses, but the people of Andover at large."

"Come one, come all," said Stephen Stapinski, Andover Chamber president. "It's a networking function, but also a chance to introduce people in Andover to the excellent restaurants and other food service facilities we have in our town."

The Old Town Hall will be adorned with arrangements from local florists and background music will be courtesy of Gary Michaels Orchestra.

Additional parking the downtown area will be available, courtesy of Andover Bank, First Essex Bank and The Savings Bank. Many downtown Andover businesses will remain open until 8 p.m. that night in celebration of the event.

Attendance will be limited to the first 300 people. Tickets are $10, and are available by contacting the Merrimack Valley Chamber of Commerce at 686-0900, Frank Vacirca, superintendent of Greater Lawrence Vocational Technical High School, at 686-0194, or Ron Hill, principal of Baystate Financial Services in Andover, at 475-9212. ## Stumbling giants

Raytheon, Gillette stocks slide on investor uncertainty ...

Two multi-billion-dollar corporations with major facilities in Andover have been regularly at the top of the national business news in recent weeks, but probably not for reasons they would prefer.

The stock of both Raytheon Co. and Gillette Co. has taken a beating in the wake of losses for the third quarter at Raytheon, and plunging profits at Gillette.

Most of the bad news for Raytheon was already out by the time CEO Daniel Burnham acknowledged to analysts in a conference call earlier this month that the company had "tried to do too much too fast" — a reference to the acquisition binge that doubled the size of the company to $20 billion, and made it the third-largest defense contractor in the world.

By that time, Raytheon, which has a major operation in Andover, had already warned of a $160-million third-quarter loss, had already reported that expected orders for its Patriot missile were less than expected and had announced it would yet again trim its work force, this time by nearly 2,400, with about 340 of those jobs coming from Massachusetts operations.

And by that time, its stock had tumbled from a high of more than 76 in the summer to just over 24.

Raytheon spokesman David Shea had said in other interviews that the job cuts would not affect the Andover operation, and there has been some encouraging news reported amid the profit slide, including the success of a Raytheon anti-missile rocket that is part of a so-called land-based Star Wars defense system.

Burnham also pledged to bring profits up to the 6 percent level he had promised.

However, analysts said this past week that they don't expect the company to rebound quickly. And as expected, the news of layoffs has again prompted some state legislators to complain about the 1995 agreement with Raytheon that gave the company a tax break in exchange for maintaining certain payroll levels. That tax break has been widely reported as worth $20 million a year, but Raytheon and other defense contractors that were part of the agreement have claimed it was worth only about $9.4 million in 1996 and $3 million in 1997. There are no figures available for 1998.

Meanwhile, at Gillette, which has a plant in Andover on Burt Road, the good news was that the news wasn't about losses. But with the company warning that profits could drop substantially in the fourth quarter, Gillette shares were down in the mid-30s this week, about half of its high of 64 in May.

According to analysts, the problems at Gillette are with various businesses that are outside its "core" line of shaving and other toiletry products.

In response to reports that the company might get rid of stationery brands such as Parker and Paper Mate and parts of its Braun appliance division, spokesman Eric Kraus said those businesses "are under intense scrutiny."

But he also said the company is now in the middle of a major restructuring announced in September 1998 and not begun until this past January.

"We said the restructuring was going to take 18 months to complete," he says. "We're taking corrective measures that we feel will bode very well for the future."

Kraus said the company's current stresses will have little to no impact on the Andover operation, which manufactures toiletry products.

He also said that Gillette employees who own stock in the company, and who have seen about half the value of their shares evaporate in less than six months, are not looking for short-term results.

"We have an employee base of people who have made Gillette their career," he says, "with an average length of service of 15 years. So they're looking long-term."

Stock ownership, he adds, tends to be "a personal motivator as well. They do whatever they can individually to enhance the value of the company."

... while NaviSite takes flight

While the established giants of industry were taking their lumps over the past week in the stock market, yet another Internet fledgling took off in grand style Friday, closing at more than double its opening price in its first day of trading.

NaviSite, of Andover, a Web-site management firm that is yet another property of the Andover-based Internet investment firm CMGI Inc., had priced 5.5 million shares of an initial public offering at $14 per share. But it opened at more than double that price, at 29, rose to 47 during the day and closed at 34, raising $77 million for a company founded just two and a half years ago.

Some of that investor confidence clearly comes from its association with CMGI, which still owns about 71 percent of it, since NaviSite had just $10.5 million in revenue and losses of more than $24 million in the fiscal year ending July 31.

The enthusiasm of investors probably also came from the prospects for Web management, which is expected to increase from less than $1 billion to nearly $15 billion in just the next three years.

Whatever the reasons, the champagne corks were popping at Brickstone Square Friday afternoon, as employees celebrated the news.

NaviSite has grown from 50 to 240 employees just in the last year, broke ground on a new, 150,000-square-foot headquarters at Minuteman Park that it hopes to occupy this coming February, and plans to hire more people by then, according to spokeswoman Brenda Suarez.

She said about 50,000 square feet of the new headquarters will be the data center, which houses the servers for clients' Web sites. She says NaviSite currently has about 200 customers. Some of the sites require only one server, while others take as many as 50.

Professional Profile

Attorney Marybeth McInnis

Estate planning with the right attorney is a crucial life decision. For some people it is not one they relish having to make. Some procrastinate, and some never get around to it. Attorney Marybeth McInnis and McInnis Law Offices can take the anxiety out of making that first move. Estate and Tax planning is what they do exclusively. Continuing their legal education constantly in this field, clients can be assured their beneficiaries will receive not only what they wish for them to receive, but all the law allows.

Attorney Marybeth McInnis, together with her father, Attorney James McInnis, believe foremost in establishing a good working relationship with clients. This happens when clients are comfortable and confident that their decisions and wishes will be heard and respected. For much of their work, McInnis Law Offices charges a flat fee so clients can feel free to explore their feelings, express their wishes, and become informed by asking questions.

Estate planning gives a person the opportunity to determine themselves, within the boundaries of the law, how their assets are distributed. Dying without a will forces the state to take charge. Children and family members in that situation are subject to the decisions of strangers. For the elderly, selecting someone they trust to have Power of Attorney is a decision that should be made while healthy and clear thinking because it is as important a decision as one can make in a lifetime.

Attorney Marybeth McInnis grew up in North Andover and continues to live in the community with her husband. She is a member of the American Bar Association and the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys. She is also Co-President of the Friends of Merrimack College and is licensed to practice in New Hampshire as well as Massachusetts.

McInnis Law Offices is at 807 Turnpike St. (Rte. 114) in North Andover. The office is comfortable and sunny with convenient parking. Call for an appointment at (978) 686-6112.

Undefeated-season status in sight for 3 AHS varsity teams

By Rick Harrison

Although it's rare when any high school varsity athletic team is able to go through an entire season undefeated, Andover High has no less than three teams flirting with such an accomplishment this fall.

The girls soccer, girls volleyball and girls swim and dive teams are all close to completing the campaign without a loss.

Girls soccer is 18-0-1 with one pre-tournament game left, girls volleyball is 18-0 with two matches remaining, and girls swim and dive is 11-0 with one monumental dual meet to go.

***

On Tuesday the AHS boys varsity soccer team became the third Golden Warrior squad this fall to nail down a Merrimack Valley Conference title, whitewashing Methuen 4-0 to join the girls soccer and girls volleyball teams as champions.

***

The girls soccer team inched closer to its first undefeated regular season since 1988 — when the Lady Warriors went 16-0-2 and reached the Division 1 North Tournament title game before suffering their only loss to Acton-Boxboro.

That came a year after Andover and Agawam were crowned state champs as they battled through 80 regulation minutes and five overtimes and finished in a 0-0 tie.

***

The Andover golf team completed another outstanding season by finishing third in the MVC and placing seventh in a 17-school field at the Division 1 North Sectional Tournament.

Capt. Alex Berger, despite playing with an injured thumb, finished sixth in a field of the league's 18 best players at the annual MVC Individual Championships on Tuesday at Hickory Hill GC in Methuen.

***

The stage is set for one of the biggest, if not the biggest, dual meet in Andover High girls swim and dive history.

The Lady Warriors, 11-0, will host likewise-undefeated multi-time MVC defending champ Chelmsford (10-0) tomorrow afternoon at the Greater Lawrence Tech pool (3:30 p.m.).

The two powers are being touted as the best two teams in the state this fall, and to the winner goes the conference dual-meet title and an undefeated regular season.

Andover last won the conference crown in 1983 and has never won 11 dual meets before this year.

"It's hard to contain my emotions (about the Chelmsford meet)," said AHS coach Marilyn Fitzgerald. "It's an awesome feeling to be involved in something like this. It's nervous excitement. Some coaches and athletes never get to feel like this. I wish I could bottle the anticipation. I won't be sleeping much until the meet is over.

"It's a terrific rivalry. So many of these kids swim together and against one another on club teams, and Harriet (Chelmsford coach Kinnett) and I are best friends," said Fitzgerald.

"I hope every girl on both teams is healthy. You never want an injury or a close call by the officials to decide a meet like this."

Some people in the know give Andover a wafer-thin edge, while others see it as too close to call.

"I'm trying to convince our girls that, win or lose, the sun will come up Saturday morning," concluded Fitzgerald with a laugh.

***

The AHS field hockey team capped its season in frustrating style, dropping a pair of 1-0 decisions that left the locals just one point shy of qualifying for the Division 1 North Tournament.

***

The AHS girls cross country team wrapped up an outstanding 8-2 dual-meet campaign by posting a trio of season-ending wins over Lowell, Haverhill and Notre Dame Academy of Tynsgboro.

***

The composite won-lost-tied record of the nine AHS fall varsity sports teams through Tuesday is an impressive 85-26-11.

GOLF

The Andover High golf team placed seventh in a 17-team field at the Division 1 North Sectional Tournament earlier this week at the Beverly Golf and Tennis Club.

It was a solid showing, but not quite good enough to advance the Golden Warriors to next Wednesday's State Division 1 Championships at Pleasant Valley CC in Sutton.

Although the team did not qualify, sophomore J.J. Herling will play for the state individual title at Pleasant Valley that same day.

Herling was team medalist at the sectionals with an 80, which beat the cutoff of 81 by one stroke.

Dethroned as Merrimack Valley Conference champion by Methuen, AHS nevertheless finished the regular season with a fine 9-5-2 overall record.

The MVC campaign ended with a win over Central Catholic yesterday, while other recent matches included a 7-5 victory over Tewksbury, 6-6 tie against Haverhill, 8-4 loss to conference champ Methuen and 7-5 setback to Lowell.

Coach Bob Lawson's teams had won six straight MVC titles before settling for third place this fall behind Methuen (11-2-2) and Haverhill (10-3-2).

***

The future looks bright as only senior Capt. Alex Berger and Mark Russo will graduate from this 1999 team that also featured three juniors, five sophomores and two freshmen.

Injury report

Andover played the Methuen and Tewksbury matches without senior Capt. Alex Berger. He was sidelined with an infected right thumb that made it very painful to swing a club.

He did, however, return in time for the North Sectionals and MVC Individual.

North Sectionals

Andover finished at 335 strokes which placed the locals just two shots behind fifth-and-final State Division 1 qualifier Haverhill.

St. John's Prep of Danvers, beaten by Andover in a scrimmage match this fall, was the runaway Division 1 North champ with 314 strokes.

Tied for second, third and fourth place at 332 were Acton-Boxboro, Newton North and Methuen, while tied for

Loss, schedule dim Warriors' hopes for Super Bowl berth

By Rick Harrison

TEWKSBURY — The Andover High varsity football team probably took itself out of the Merrimack Valley Conference title mix by dropping a 20-0 decision to host Tewksbury at Doucette Field.

That loss, which snapped a four-game Golden Warriors' win streak, left the locals two games behind undefeated MVC co-leaders Billerica and Chelmsford (both 6-0 overall).

They are also a game in back of Tewksbury, and because they are chasing three teams and have lost to two of them the chances for a conference title and Eastern Mass. Division 2 Super Bowl are bleak.

The schedule is not favorable, either.

Coach Ken Maglio's crew, 4-3 overall and 2-2 league, completes the season with Lowell, Chelmsford and Central Catholic sandwiched around struggling Haverhill.

Tomorrow night AHS travels to Cawley Memorial Stadium in Lowell to battle the Red Raiders. Kickoff is at 7 p.m.

Lowell, better than its 1-5 record, has lost four games by a touchdown or less and is paced by senior running back Raunny Rosario.

Rosario is poised to break the all-time Lowell career scoring and rushing records. He is coming off a school-record 36-point night against Dracut, as he powered a 39-14 win two weeks ago with six touchdowns and 262 yards rushing.

Coach Scott Boyle's Red Raiders had last weekend off so they will be well-rested.

Waiting further down the line are Chelmsford (Nov. 5 at home), winner of eight straight and 11 of 12 the past two years, and two-time reigning MVC and Eastern Mass. Division 2 Super Bowl champion Central Catholic (3-3) on Thanksgiving morning.

The only potential breather comes Nov. 12 when struggling Haverhill (1-6) comes to Lovely Field.

***

AHS, which had outscored its opponents by a wide 114-28 margin during its four-game victory streak, couldn't get much of anything started against Tewksbury.

They came out flat and the Redmen refused to let the locals get charged up.

It was the second time this season the Golden Warriors were shut out (27-0 by Billerica).

With a swirling wind playing havoc with quarterback Chris Rogers' usually reliable passing game, Andover threw for only 80 yards.

The stubborn Redman defense smothered the ground game, limiting the locals to 26 net yards rushing on 20 carries. Mike Giles was held to just 20 yards on seven carries.

The AHS defense, led by Sean Smith, Chris Barry, Luis Santiago and Mike Zizzo, played well until wearing down in the fourth quarter.

Tewksbury scored the only points needed in the second period, on a 20 yard pass from QB Tom Sullivan to Jay Wagstaff, and it remained 7-0 until the fourth quarter.

Early in the final stanza Mark Boudreau, stepping in for injured Erik Hamilton who has a recurring ankle problem, raced 35 yards for his fifth touchdown and the first of two late insurance scores.

The Boudreau sprint came on third down and capped an eight-play, 80 yard drive after a punt.

ties were Haverhill and Billerica.

The ties were broken by the fifth-player rule. The four low scores are used to figure the team total, and when teams are tied the fifth player's score is used to break the deadlock.

***

J.J. Herling was the Andover medalist, and the third best finisher among all MVC players, with an 80.

Also scoring for the Golden Warriors were junior Jon Ofria with an 84, sophomore Dan Lentz 84 and sophomore Tim LeGrow 87.

Others competing were junior Nick Berger, who finished with an 88, and Alex Berger whose 94 can be attributed in part to his injured thumb.

Beverly Golf and Tennis is a difficult course, with a number of blind shots, and the temperatures were hovering in the mid-40's which made it difficult for all players.

Eric Recker of SJP was the individual medalist with a 77.

MVC Individuals

The Golden Warriors were represented by Capt. Alex Berger and Mark Russo at the annual Merrimack Valley Conference Individual Championships Tuesday at Hickory Hill GC in Methuen.

Berger, ailing thumb and all, carded a 42-43-85 to tie for sixth place while Mark Russo shot 50-41-91 at windswept Hickory Hill GC.

Tim Swierzbis of Chelmsford won the competition with a three-over 36-38-74. Others finishing ahead of Berger were Joey Miller of Lowell (37-38-75), Chase Wells of Tewksbury (39-38-77), A.J. Mastrullo of Billerica (40-39-79) and Jason Howarth of Chelmsford (43-38-81).

Tied with Berger were Keith Simoes of Central Catholic (43-42-85), Tom Lamond of Dracut (43-42-85) and John Cantwell of Haverhill (43-42-85).

Andover 7 Tewksbury 5

J.J. Herling and Peter Burbank won their individual matches and teamed to capture a best ball point to spark the visiting Golden Warriors to the victory at Trull Brook GC in Tewksbury.

Capt. Mark Russo also won head-to-head while freshman Brian Alberico, sophomore Derek Barenboim and freshman Andy Haak halved their matches.

Russo and Haak also won their best ball, 1-up, while Alberico and Barenboim halved their best ball.

Herling was the Andover team medalist with a three-over 39, while Burbank and Russo both shot 40.

Tewksbury No. 1 Chase Wells won his match and was the overall medalist with a 37.

Methuen 8 Andover 4

The new MVC champs, coached by top amateur player Karen Richardson, won five of the eight individual matches against the six-time defending champs at Merrimack GC in Methuen.

The victory completed a sweep of the two matches this season for the Rangers, who squeezed out a 6 1/2 to 5 1/2 win earlier this fall at Indian Ridge.

Andover victors were junior Jon Ofria and sophomore Tim LeGrow, both 2-up, while Dan Lentz halved his match with Methuen's Jeff Nicholson.

Lentz and Brian Alberico won their best ball point, while LeGrow and junior Rick Umlah halved their best ball.

J.J. Herling once again was AHS medalist with a three-over 38 while Peter Burbank, Ofria and LeGrow all shot 39.

Overall medalist was Andy Valario of Methuen with a 37.

EARLIER MATCHES

Lowell 7

Andover 5

The Golden Warriors led the host Red Raiders (6-4-2) by a 3 1/2 to 2 1/2 score after the first two groups finished, but Lowell won three of the final four matches to nail down the Merrimack Valley Conference victory at Mt. Pleasant GC.

Sophomore J.J. Herling was the overall medalist with a three-over 39, winning his match 1-up, while other AHS victors were junior Jon Ofria and Capt. Alex Berger (both 2-and-1).

Nick Berger played No. 1 and halved his match with LHS medalist Joey Miller (41).

Ofria and Nick Berger won their best ball point, while Alex Berger and freshman Andy Haak halved their best ball.

Other solid scores for the Golden Warriors were turned in by Ofria (40) and Nick Berger (41).

Andover 6 Haverhill 6

The host Hillies swept all three points in the final foursome to erase a 6-3 deficit and salvage the tie at Haverhill CC.

Winners for the Golden Warriors were co-medalists J.J. Herling (1-up) and freshman Brian Alberico, both of whom shot four-over 39, along with Jon Ofria.

Dan Lentz halved his match and best ball points were earned by Ofria/Lentz and Alberico/Nick Berger. Herling and Tim LeGrow halved their best ball.

Greg Guilmette and Jon Cantwell, playing Nos. 1 and 2 for Haverhill, were team medalists with 40.

BOYS SOCCER

The Andover High boys varsity soccer team continued to play well down the regular season homestretch, blasting Chelmsford, 7-1, and clinching the MVC title with a 4-0 triumph over Methuen.

AHS improved to 12-2-3 overall, 11-1-3 in conference play, with one pre-tourney game left.

The Golden Warriors are also working on an 11-game undefeated streak (9-0-2).

This fall Andover has provided coach Dave Amundsen with his 18th Division 1 North Tournament qualifier in the last 19 years and a 10th league title.

The most potent offensive team in the league has outscored its 17 opponents, 69-16, and Andover has allowed only five goals in its last 11 games.

***

The turnaround was achieved after the 4-1 Kickoff Classic loss to North Andover, with two key moves switching senior midfielder and Capt. Jon Lakow to stopper and junior Jim Hale to sweeper.

"Lakow and Hale certainly have made a difference in our overall play from their new positions," said Amundsen. "Jon settled the defense down after a spell where we struggled and were giving up more goals than we should have."

"He keeps track of where the opposing players are and has been a very big help with our long throws."

"Jim is one of the best all-around athletes on the team. He plays the ball well and isn't bothered by the pressure applied by opposing teams."

"Both Lakow and Hale have made good decisions since moving to those positions. And you can't argue with our record since then (9-0-2)," said Amundsen.

All-Star Game

The MVC All-Conference and All-Star selections were made at a meeting last night, after Townsmen presstime.

Those Andover players selected will compete in the annual MVC All-Star Game this Sunday at 3 p.m. at Lovely Field.

Schedule

The regular season finale is this afternoon at Lovely Field against Haverhill (3:30 p.m.).

Tournament pairings will be released next Wednesday. Andover will get at least one home game in the single-elimination tourney, and the locals may even receive a first round bye.

Leading scorers

Paul Bellacqua has reached the rarely-attained 30-point plateau with 19 goals and 11 assists.

Mike Grieco has 13 goals and 10 assists, Matt Bengston 10 goals, nine assists and Josh Gagnon eight goals, two assists.

Andover 4 Methuen 0

In addition to officially clinching the MVC title with this victory at Lovely Field, Andover eliminated the visiting Rangers from tournament consideration.

Junior striker Josh Gagnon scored the only goal needed one minute into the game, taking a pass from sophomore Mike Grieco and blasting a shot past Methuen's Bob Parker.

"It was as hard a shot as we've seen all season," said Amundsen. "I think the keeper got a hand on it but it was such a bullet he couldn't hold on."

Sophomore midfielder Chris Brouillard connected five minutes later to make it 2-0, with Grieco once again the setup man.

Grieco got into the scoring act with an 18 yard shot about 10 minutes into the second half, and Matt Bengston capped the offense with an assist to Paul Bellacqua (30th point).

Dan Bellacqua went the distance in net for his fifth solo shutout and the team's eighth whitewash.

Parker finished with 12 saves for the Rangers as AHS held a 15-5 shots-on-goal edge.

Playing well for the Golden Warriors were stopper Jon Lakow, sweeper Jim Hale and midfielder Andy Lapsa.

Andover 7 Chelmsford 1

The Golden Warriors, whose 11-game unbeaten string started with a 6-0 romp over Chelmsford on Sept. 30, slammed the Lions (8-5-1) a second time under the lights at Lovely Field.

The visitors actually grabbed a 1-0 lead one minute into the game on a goal by Rob Lane, but a short time later Andover's Mike Grieco netted the first of his three goals to tie the score.

Later in the first half Josh Gagnon and Paul Bellacqua added unassisted goals, and Bellacqua also set up senior midfielder Andy Lapsa to boost the lead to 4-1 at the break.

Grieco completed his first varsity hat trick with a pair of quick goals in the second half, the first unassisted and the second (12th of season) set up by Matt Bengston.

Kevin Hess wrapped up the assault with his first goal of the season, as potent Andover scored five or more goals for the sixth time this fall.

Tryouts for 6th- thru 8th-grade boys travel basketball teams will be held this Saturday

Tryouts for the Andover 6th, 7th and 8th grade boys travel basketball teams, which are beginning their 14th season, will be held this Saturday, Oct. 30, at the West Middle School gym.

All 6th grade candidates should report at 8:30 a.m., all 7th graders at 10 a.m. and all 8th graders at 11:30 a.m. both days.

If another tryout is necessary the day, time and site will be announced at this tryout.

For further information call Joe Iarrobino at 474-0523.

***

The notice for the first tryout scheduled last weekend (Oct. 23) was inadvertently omitted from last week's Townsmen.

"We scrunched them," said coach Amundsen. "This was a good demonstration of our capabilities. A real team effort."

Dan Bellacqua played the first 60 minutes in net and stopped seven of the eight shots he faced. Chris Morrissey finished up with three saves over the final 20 minutes.

Also playing well for the league champs were Capt. Jon Lakow at stopper, junior Jim Hale at sweeper, and midfielders Steve Liu, Matt Bengston and Chris Brouillard.

GIRLS SOCCER

Junior forward Lisa Tisbert scored a hat trick, netting all three goals, as the Andover High girls varsity soccer team beat back another challenge by registering a 3-1 victory over previously-undefeated Cape Ann League power Pentucket Regional of West Newbury under the lights at chilly Lovely Field.

It was Tisbert's second hat trick and the team's fifth this fall.

The sizzling Tisbert also had two second-half goals, including the game-winner in the final minute, as the Lady Warriors slipped past non-league rival Notre Dame Academy of Hingham, 3-2.

It marked four straight games the locals scored three goals and defeated four outstanding opponents, the previous two victories 3-0 over MVC Division 2 champ Central Catholic and a 3-1 triumph over archrival Billerica.

***

The Lady Warriors, 18-0-1 and winners of their 10th conference title in the last 15 years, have outscored their 19 opponents by a wide 84-16 margin with nine shutouts.

Schedule

Andover hosted Lowell yesterday and wraps up regular season play Saturday night with a 7 o'clock non-league game against North Andover at the North Andover Middle School field.

***

The Division 1 North Tournament pairings are scheduled out next Tuesday. Andover should be seeded among the top three and could earn a first round bye. AHS will definitely play its first game at home.

All-Star Game

Andover grabbed five of the 15 available spots on the 1999 MVC All-Conference team and also had five players selected as All-Stars.

Best of the best All-Conference choices are Amy Axelrod, Diana Petersen, Katie Kramer, Lisa Tisbert and Kasey Dexter.

Named All-Stars are Jessie DeFrancisco, Allison Corey, Brittany Traynor, Kaitlin Hill and Jen Muller.

Muller was one of only two freshman picked for the team.

Those 10 girls will represent Andover at the annual MVC All-Star Game this Sunday at 1 p.m. at Lovely Field.

Injury report

The season is over prematurely for senior forward Megan Munroe, who had five goals and two assists this fall.

Munroe is having an operation on her left leg to repair some muscle tissue around the knee. It is a condition she has suffered with for awhile.

She could be back at full strength within four or five weeks — in time to compete on the winter track team.

Scoring leaders

Katie Kramer is the top scorer with 17 goals and 10 assists, while Lisa Tisbert has 13 goals and eight assists.

Allison Corey has nine goals and nine assists, Jessie DeFrancisco seven goals and seven assists, Kasey Dexter four goals, eight assists and Jenny Muller nine goals, two assists.

Andover 3

Pentucket Regional 1

It took Allison Foote of Pentucket a mere 26 seconds to net an unassisted goal and give the visiting Sachems a 1-0 lead.

Lisa Tisbert began her personal attack on Pentucket at 24:32, tying the game 1-1 after a fine setup feed from Allison Corey. Her crossing pass enabled Tisbert to slip through the back door unmarked and tap the ball home.

Tisbert made it 2-1 with 54 seconds left in the half, connecting from short range after a corner kick by Kasey Dexter.

"It was a fun game," said AHS coach Dick Loschi. "We fell behind so early it momentarily stunned us. But there were still 79 minutes and 30 seconds left for us to come back."

"We increased our defensive pressure and movement to the ball. Pentucket was very quick so we had to be quicker."

Tisbert supplied the insurance goal at 23:09 of the second half with assists to Corey and Katie Kramer.

Kramer passed to Corey, who tapped the ball to the middle where Tisbert fired a bullet from 10 yards out.

Taylor Traub went the route in net and made eight saves, while Sachems' goalkeeper Erica Balletto finished with 15 stops.

Midfielder Jessie DeFrancisco was a standout, although Loschi added that "every player that stepped on the field did an outstanding job."

Andover 3

NDA-Hingham 2

Junior forward Lisa Tisbert scored a pair of second-half goals, including the game-winner with only 37 seconds remaining, as the Lady Warriors squeezed out the non-league win over visiting Notre Dame under the lights at Lovely Field.

Tisbert's clinching goal at 39:23 of the second half came after a free kick by Kasey Dexter cleared the NDA defenders.

Tisbert caught up with the ball about 12 yards from the net and blasted a high shot past the NDA keeper.

Notre Dame (8-4-3) inched ahead 1-0 at 12:32 of the first half, but sophomore forward Katie Kramer tied it 1-1 on a penalty kick 10 minutes later.

Kramer's goal was her 17th and kept AHS perfect on penalty kicks this fall (5-for-5).

Tisbert's first goal came at 6:38 of the second half, as she headed a crossing pass from Capt. Jessie DeFrancisco into the net to give the locals a short-lived 2-1 advantage.

Notre Dame tied it just 32 seconds later (7:10), and it remained 2-2 until Tisbert's 10th goal of the season produced the dramatic victory.

"It was a nice game to watch," said coach Loschi. "Back and forth action with some physical play. We were tentative at first and then became much more focused in the second half."

Kaitlin Hyde played about 60 minutes in the AHS net, leaving briefly when she collided with an Notre Dame player and had the wind knocked out of her.

Taylor Traub tended goal the other 20 minutes and made three saves, while Hyde finished with six stops.

Also playing well for the Lady Warriors were midfielders Kaitlin Hill and Jenny Muller, forward Allison Corey and Dexter who moved back to stopper for the night.

"Kasey played a very smart, strong game," said Loschi.

The win enabled Andover to sweep the home-and-home series with NDA-Hingham, the first game ending 4-2 back on Sept. 18.

Andover 3

Billerica 1

"This time around against Billerica we were intense and aggressive from the beginning," said coach Loschi. "We didn't wait until the last four minutes of the game to come alive and pull out the win."

Katie Kramer gave the Lady Warriors a 1-0 lead with her 17th goal, assisted by sophomore midfielder Kaitlin Hill, at 8:39 of the first half.

So close — Above, one more win (or a tie) would have qualified the Andover High varsity field hockey team for the Division 1 North Tournament. The team finished its 1999 season with 17 points but needed 18 to make the tourney.

At right, team scoring leader Lindsay Shaheen finished with five goals and five assists, while Elysia Yet (below right) netted a team-high seven goals, one assist.

Photos by Lisa Adelsberger

Kramer took a right wing crossing pass and blasted a 15 yard shot into the net.

It stayed that way until senior forward Allison Corey netted her 10th goal at 13:24 of the second half.

She took a feed from Caitlin Murray, dribbled out of the left corner to a good shooting angle and fired the ball to the top right corner of the BMHS net.

The Indians' Daniela Ferrara scored an unassisted goal during the 26th minute, making it 2-1 and snapping an impressive AHS shutout streak that extended through five full games and reached 518 consecutive minutes.

Freshman Jenny Muller notched the insurance goal for AHS at 34:15, intercepting a clearing pass and dribbling around two defenders before drilling a shot to the short side for her 10th goal.

Junior goalkeeper Taylor Traub made four saves and blanked the Indians for the first half. Sophomore Kaitlin Hyde stopped six of seven shots in the second half.

Becky Conway had 13 saves for Billerica as AHS finished with a 16-11 shots-on-goal edge.

"We controlled the majority of the play," said Loschi. "Amy Axelrod made numerous defensive runs out of our end. Kasey Dexter played a strong game at midfield."

"Most of the Billerica shots were not testers. They haven't scored a lot of goals this season. They play defense and wait for the breaks."

Junior forward Lisa Tisbert also played a strong game for Andover.

FIELD HOCKEY

The Andover High varsity field hockey team completed its 1999 season one slim point shy of qualifying for the Division 1 North Tournament.

Consecutive 1-0 losses to Methuen and Tewksbury in the final two regular season games left coach Maureen Noone's club at 6-7-5 overall.

AHS finished with 17 points and needed 18 to make the tourney.

***

"Too many mental mistakes," said coach Noone about the agonizing finish. "We played well defensively but just couldn't put the ball in the net. We didn't even have many shots on net the last few games."

"We tried to play finesse hockey when we needed to bump-and-run and be more physical."

"It's a shame. All we needed were a couple small breaks to get one more win or tie to qualify for the tournament."

Andover allowed only 12 goals in 18 games, posting nine shutouts and yielding more than one goal only twice.

AHS ROUNDUP

But the locals were shut out 10 times themselves, including eight of the last 10 games, and they scored only 19 goals.

"It's a great group of kids and the younger players are very much involved in the sport. Many of them intend to play the year-round and that's encouraging," said second-year coach Noone.

"It's very competitive for the female athletes in town. The soccer, volleyball and swim teams are all very good and there are only so many kids to go around.

***

The team had only five seniors and just two that played regularly (Colleen Bateson and Marissa Wolfe).

Eligible to return next fall are seven juniors, eight sophomores and one freshman including top scorers Lindsay Shaheen, Elysia Yet and goaltender Angelica Rotsart.

The team breakup dinner is Nov. 16 at Andover Country Club.

Scoring leaders

Lindsay Shaheen finished with five goals and five assists, while Elysia Yet boasted a team-high seven goals, one assist.

Tewksbury 1

Andover 0

Karen Castaldo's goal at 6:12 of the second half, in the final regular season game, kept the Lady Warriors out of the tournament.

AHS goaltender Angelica Rotsart faced nine shots and made eight saves, while Jen Willey posted a four-save shutout for MVC runner-up Tewksbury (13-2).

Cited for strong play were Andover back Marissa Wolfe, sophomore midfielder Kara Spang, freshman forward Stephanie Casper and center-midfielder Colleen Bateson.

Methuen 1

Andover 0

Nicole Carrier of Methuen scored the game's only goal at 6:35 of the first half.

"I felt we outplayed them," said coach Noone. "We have problems with the physical game when the officials let it get rough — and this was one of those games."

Sophomore Angelica Rotsart made three saves in the AHS net, while the Rangers' Nicole Pierina had seven stops for the shutout.

Playing well for the locals were sophomore right wing Joan Moffit, freshman center-forward Stephanie Casper and junior defender Laura Mertes.

GIRLS VOLLEYBALL

The best regular season in the history of Andover High girls volleyball got even better when the Lady Warriors traveled to Dracut and pinned a 2-0 loss on the perennial state title challengers.

It was a showdown of Merrimack Valley Conference Division 1 (Dracut) and 2 powers, with both teams undefeated in conference play entering the match.

Andover's inexorable march to a perfect 20-0 regular season continued with other recent 2-0 triumphs over Tewksbury, Notre Dame Academy of Tyngsboro and Central Catholic.

Those wins boosted coach George Sullivan and Art Iworsley's team to 18-0 including 17 two-game sweeps.

Schedule

All that stands between the locals and regular season perfection are a non-leaguer tomorrow night versus Lexington (6 p.m.), and Lowell in the annual MVC Volleyball Night at Chelmsford High next Monday evening.

Central is the only team to win a game against Andover this fall during a 2-1 Lady Warriors' victory on Sept. 30.

***

Tomorrow's Lexington match is also the annual "Senior Night" when varsity 12th graders Lindsey Pearson, Michelle Danis, Kristen Sweeney, Kate Gurry and Leah Spires will be presented with flower bouquets and feted prior to the match.

Andover 2

Dracut 0

AHS raced to a 13-2 first-game lead and eventually nailed down a 15-6 win, and then completed the sweep at Dracut High with a come-from-behind 16-14 overtime victory in game two.

"We dominated the first game," said coach Sullivan. "Our girls weren't intimidated at all. We had Dracut well-scouted and went into the match with confidence."

"A lot of our kids play with and against the Dracut girls over the winter, on club and Junior Olympic teams, and that pumped everyone up even more."

"Dracut woke up in the second game, but we tore them apart with our serving throughout the match," said coach Sullivan.

The MVC Division 2 champs finished with 15 kills and 15 service aces.

Capt. Michelle Danis had a strong all-around match with 14-for-16 hitting and five kills, along with 7-for-10 serving with four aces.

"Michelle was absolutely terrific at the net," said Sullivan. "She did an excellent job blocking and her two aces broke a 14-14 tie to close out the second game."

Andover trailed 13-11 in game two before outscoring the Middies, 5-1, to complete the sweep.

Robin Young, who suffered a possible mild concussion during the match, was 15-for-15 hitting with four kills and 9-for-11 serving with three aces.

"Robin got her bell rung but she kept playing hard," said Sullivan.

Julie Marvin contributed 9-for-10 hitting, with three kills, and 10-for-14 serving with four aces.

Capt. Lindsey Pearson was 7-for-8 hitting with two kills, and 7-for-7 serving with three aces.

Shannon Sweeney was 8-for-8 hitting and 5-for-6 serving, Michelle Leahy 4-for-6 hitting (two kills) and 5-for-9 serving (one ace) and Leah Spires 2-for-2 hitting.

***

The Andover JVs won the prelim 2-0 with game scores of 15-0 and 15-10. Playing well were Maura McCurdy, Jenna Nelson, Jackie Barry and Amanda Camelio.

Andover 2 Tewksbury 0

The senior members of the Lady Warriors managed to stay awake and focused on the day following the annual "Senior Boat Cruise" around Boston Harbor.

The locals raced to a 10-0 first-game lead and finished with a resounding 15-4, 15-5 sweep.

All 13 players participated in both games and the final statistics were spread around.

Julie Marvin served the first eight points in game one, including four aces, and Michelle Leahy served out the game a short time later.

Michelle Danis contributed five kills in the match, while Shannon Sweeney added four kills as both saw limited court time.

***

The Andover JVs moved within one win of a perfect season when they trounced Tewksbury 2-0 in the prelim. The game scores were 15-0 and 15-4.

Playing well throughout were Jackie Barry, Amanda Camelio, Maura McCurdy, Jenna Nelson, Courtney Gatlin and Andrea Manners.

GIRLS SWIM & DIVE

The Andover High girls swim and dive team has moved within one victory of a perfect regular season, recent dual meet wins over Billerica (102-64) and Dracut (104.5 to 76.5) boosting the locals' overall record to 11-0 including 8-0 in the Merrimack Valley Conference.

Along the way the Lady Warriors have produced an impressive 46 state and 25 additional sectional-cut times.

Schedule

The huge MVC title showdown against likewise-unbeaten Chelmsford, with the conference championship and a perfect record on the line for both teams, is tomorrow at the Greater Lawrence Tech pool (3:30 p.m.). The defending champion Lions will enter at 10-0.

Andover 104.5 Dracut 76.5

The Lady Warriors placed first in nine of 12 events, sweeping the one-meter diving, 200-yard freestyle, 100 butterfly and 100 breaststroke in their final pre-Chelmsford tuneup.

Sweeping the diving were Kristen Elmore (225.65 points), Becky Hass (178.70) and Bahaar Massihzadegan (153.20).

Cleaning up in the 200 free were Edie Muller (2:09.43), Ellie Browne (2:14.69) and Nina Conn (2:34.75).

The Andover High Swim Team, currently undefeated, will sell refreshments and paint faces in front of Old Town Hall, 20 Main St., Saturday, Oct. 30, from 8 a.m. to noon. Proceeds will benefit the AHS Swim Team Scholarship. "Stop by for Smolak Farm doughnuts, cider and Halloween treats, and show your support," organizers ask. Swim team members (from left) are Ashley Hargadon, Lauren Kapelson, Namphuong Nguyen, Cara Chiaraluce, Christiana Kuipers, Alexis Caselle, Greta Kaminski, Jess Greene and Nina Conn.

Placing 1-2-3 in the 100 fly were Beth Couture (1:10.38), Browne (1:11.16) and Alexis Caselle (1:12.94).

The final sweep in the 100 breast came from Hillary Schofield, with an impressive state-cut 1:15.07 clocking, Alexis Caselle (1:19.26) and Krissy O'Neill (1:22.07).

Other individual race winners were Caitlin Geary (50 free, 26.28), Katie Buckley (100 free, 1:06.91) and Katya Yerozolinsky (6:31.19).

The victorious 200 medley relay team included Melissa Griffin, Holly Hinds, Dana Medaglio and Couture (2:20.87).

The winning 400 free relay featured Buckley, Conn, Caitlin Hamer and Angie Kearney (4:36.62).

Other AHS runners-up were Jessica Greene (200 IM, 2:51.55), Lauren Harlow (50 free, 26.46), Kearney (500 free, 6:53.15) and Lauren Kapelson (100 backstroke, 1:07.87).

Second-place relays were the 200 medley quartet of Kapelson, Kelly O'Brien, Monika Eghbalian and Christina Caselle (2:21.88), the 200 free team of Jen Borden, Kaitlin Haugh, O'Brien and Hass (2:10.95), and the 400 free foursome of Buckley, Conn, Hamer and Kearney (4:41.60).

Contributing thirds were Michelle Zaiter (200 IM, 2:56.54) and Hamer (100 back, sectional-cut 1:09.70).

Fourth place finishers were Cara Chiaraluce (200 IM, 3:07.03), Ali Munroe (100 free, 1:11.70), Greta Kaminski (500 free, 7:00.44) and Kaitlin O'Malley (100 back, 1:23.00).

Completing the scorers in fifth was Rosanna Webb (100 free, 1:16.47).

"We were especially happy with Hillary Schofield's breaststroke time," said coach Fitzgerald. "She's coming off an injury and was doing mostly freestyle racing until today."

Andover 102 Billerica 64

The Lady Warriors placed first in 10 of 12 events, sweeping the one-meter diving and 100-yard butterfly, on the way to another lopsided dual-meet romp at the Shawsheen Tech pool in Billerica.

"We had a bunch more personal-best times, state and sectional cuts," said coach Marilyn Fitzgerald. "We mixed the lineup again and every girl that had come close to a state or sectional cut time made it today."

The sweep of the diving was accomplished by winner Jen Busby (season-high 245.80 points), junior Kaitlin Doyle and sophomore Mairén Neri.

Today's vehicles are the safest ever

ANDOVER
TOWNSMAN

Today's vehicles are the safest ever

Think safety rests only in four-wheel drive?

Not true. Today's vehicles, both passenger and light truck models, are safer than their predecessors by far.

Seat belts, air bags and other preventative measures are standard in some vehicles, all with the goal of providing a safer ride. According to sales representatives at Tulley Volkswagen in South Nashua, New Hampshire, air bags, both front and side, are still important safety features, regardless of recent attention.

The air bag, a device that inflates when the vehicle sustains a front impact, was originally created in the late 1960s, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. The goal was to protect the adult driver or passenger who was not wearing a seatbelt.

The physics of a body in motion came into play. According to Newton's laws, a body in motion — such as a vehicle — stays in motion, until another force acts upon it. As your vehicle glides to 65 miles-per-hour, you feel stable in one position. If you slam on your brakes and break the motion, you propel your body forward. While the car's momentum is slowing, your body is still in motion. A seatbelt keeps the body upright and restrains it in its original place, rather than sending you towards the wheel or the windshield. The air bag was designed to cushion the blow.

The problem? The air bag's original design was for a five-foot, nine-inch adult, weighing 190 pounds. Not all passengers or drivers fit this mold.

Powerful air bags caused fatal injuries to children and smaller adults when the bag inflated striking shorter people in the head and neck area. That power, combined with the area of impact, caused injuries and at times, death.

In 1997, The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) assisted auto manufacturers in reducing the power of the air bags by up to 35 percent. Newly designed bags became available in many 1999 vehicles, the same year front air bags became standard on all vehicles. In addition, the federal government began allowing auto mechanics and dealers to de-activate air bags at a driver's request. An on-off switch exists to allow car owners to have the air bag shut off, if certain conditions exist. These conditions, according to the NHTSA, include:

- a physician's recommendation,
- if your breastbone is not 10 inches away from the center of the steering wheel,
- if conditions force you to place a rear-facing child seat in the front seat;
- or if conditions force you to drive with a child under 12 in the front seat.

It is recommended that children under the age of 12 ride in the back seat of the vehicle, with a seatbelt. Children under five must be in a restraining seat and children under one year should face the rear of the car.

The air bags are still seen as a huge life-saving device, reducing injuries by 11 percent for adults and 13 percent for children. Side air bags are also in demand, and many higher-end vehicles now include bags that inflate following a side impact.

The seatbelt still remains the biggest lifesaver. Using a seat belt can decrease your chance of injury by 50 percent, states the NHTSA. But only 68 percent of people still belted themselves in each time they drive.

There are other safety options available today, some are standard, while others must be purchased separately.

Anti-lock brakes prevent crashes when the driver panics, according to Tulley Volkswagen. Years ago, slamming on your brakes at the sight of an accident locked you in place. There was no ability to steer around an oncoming car or existing accident. Anti-lock brakes allow the driver to stop, while turning the vehicle away from any potential crash.

One near-invisible safety device is head injury protection, a foam or padding located under the rim of the vehicle's body. This provides a cushion if, on impact, the driver ever strike the interior of the car.

Traction control adds stability to the vehicle at the time of acceleration, by adjusting the engine power or even the braking system when the vehicle accelerates or corners. All-wheel drive contributes to this, by distributing power between the front and rear wheels.

Even headlights are safer. Daytime running lights might seem silly or unnecessary, but in fact, can prevent accidents at dusk, when drivers might be unaware of the need for headlights.

Mercedes M-Class: Finishing school meets Outward Bound

You've probably heard about the M-Class by now. After all, it was Motor Trend's 1998 "Truck of the Year" when it debuted. It was the first SUV ever certified as a Low Emission Vehicle. It's still the only SUV with both the driving poise of four-wheel independent suspension and the brawn to tow up to 5,000 lbs. The M-Class continues its trail-blazing tradition for 2000. The V-6 powered ML 320 and ML 430 V-8 are the first SUVs with six standard air bags. Their spacious cabins have been richly refined. And if that's not enough, the new 342-hp ML 55 AMG is simply the most powerful SUV in production.

It's like it went to finishing school and Outward Bound in one summer

At first, you might only see how the new color-keyed exterior trim complements its futuristic shape. And while the rugged ML 320 still features innovative four-wheel drive, the groundbreaking electronic stability program and remarkably smooth road manners, more than 100 improvements have made this the most enjoyable ML 320 yet. A few examples: the wide doors are double-seated for a quieter ride. One hundred percent genuine burl walnut is just one of the richer materials in the thoroughly refined cabin. And new Touch Shift control for the five-speed automatic transmission lets you enjoy the 215-hp V6 all the more. What SUV ever seemed so smart?

The luxury won't surprise you half as much as the joy of driving it

Among all the luxury SUVs, it's the unexpected that sets the 2000 ML 430 apart. It's the first SUV with in-dash satellite navigation, standard. Its hand-fitted leather upholstery extends to the seat side panels, door trim and all five head restraints. Safety features include not two but six air bags, and five three-point seat belts. Its efficient, low-emission V-8 packs 268 hp and whisks the ML 430 from 0 to 60 in 8.0 seconds. The five-speed automatic features the new Touch Shift Control. And the handling? Car and Driver praised the ML 430 in a way most luxury SUVs would never expect: "quick on its feet" and "fun to drive."

Sometimes it's all about the possibilities

The magic of a sport utility vehicle often lies within. What it can carry. Who you can bring with you. And how to discover the romance of the road, the sky and the great outdoors. The 2000 M-Class is someplace new to explore. Its imaginatively designed cabin welcomes you with rich new materials, impressive craftsmanship, and some choices that'll really open up your point of view (like the optional skyview top.) So whether you seek entertainment, scenery or relaxation in your M-Class, we'd have to say the sky's the limit.

The newly-refined interior will appeal to all of your senses

The M-Class interior has always offered roomy accommodations for people, combined with clever cargo-carrying versatility. For 2000, it offers even more. From the stainless-steel door sill trim to the richer fabric of its headliner, the M-Class has raised the bar in interior quality. The fully color-keyed interior is offered in a new palette of colors. Soft leather upholstery now covers all seat surfaces, as well as the head restraints and the gathered door trim. The new 60/40 split rear seat features the comfort of a center armrest and an easy-to-use folding mechanism. Interior trim is now soft to the touch and richly textured. All the wood trim is hand-polished. And entrance lamps in each of the doors ease your entry and exit.

It feels like a Mercedes because it makes you feel at home

Among the amenities that can be yours: power windows, three 12-volt power ports, a trip computer, concealed safebox, and heated front seats.

Test drive the new Mercedes M-Class at Smith Motors, 420 River St., Haverhill, (978) 372-2552 or visit their website: www.onlymercedes.com

2000 preview: Take a look at what some manufacturers have to offer

By Ann M. Job
For AP Special Edition

Acura

Honda's luxury car division in 2000 puts an electronic vehicle stability system in its flagship sedan, the 3.5RL, and offers an upgraded GPS navigation system for the Acura RL and TL cars.

The optional navigation system uses a digital video disc (DVD). More powerful and faster than earlier navigation devices, the system includes coverage of the continental United States on one DVD. This means car owners don't have to buy multiple compact discs for different regions of the country. Early in 2000, a new Acura CL coupe is due.

Audi

The 2000 TT was an early introduction, out in the spring. Now, it can be had with Audi's all-wheel drive system, Quattro.

But this Quattro operates a bit differently than the previous Quattro system. It uses an electro-hydraulically controlled torque-distribution system. This technology is highly sensitive and, therefore, quick to detect the need for power shifting between front and rear wheels.

Also in 2000, the German automaker brings back the S4 name on a sporty, top-of-the-line version of the A4 powered by a 250-horsepower, 2.7-liter, turbo V-6 with 258 pounds-feet of torque.

The bigger A-6 line adds a flagship model with a 300-horsepower, 4.2-liter V-8 and Quattro.

The new model year also is the first year for Audi to offer a GPS navigation system in its cars.

BMW

Last year, BMW updated its 3-Series sedans. For 2000, it's the 3-Series coupes' turn.

But don't think the new coupes are two-door, carbon copies of the sedans. The 2000 323Ci and 328Ci are some half an inch longer than the sedans, nearly three-quarters of an inch wider and 1.8 inches lower.

By the end of 1999, a new BMW model is due: the X5. Six inches shorter than the BMW 5-Series but slightly wider than the 7-Series cars, the X5 is called a "sport activity vehicle."

BMW promises it will have the functionality of a sport utility and the dynamic handling of a BMW.

Engine choices will include an inline six-cylinder and a V-8. The X5 comes with permanent all-wheel drive, sending 62 percent of the power to the rear axle during normal driving.

BMW has updated its 3 series coupes for 2000. The sporty two-door models, such as the 328Ci pictured, are lower and wider than the company's sedan versions.

Buick

There's a special edition, Century 2000, for the new model year.

It features blacked-out grille, body-colored fascias and side moldings and commemorative badging on its doors, tail lamps, instrument panel, headrests and floor mats.

Like the other Century models - the Limited and Custom - it's powered by a revised, 3.1-liter, 3100 V-6 that delivers 15 more horsepower than before, with total output of 175 horsepower. Torque also was boosted, from 185 pounds-feet to 195.

Cadillac

A new DeVille debuts for 2000, with a raft of new technology.

The five-passenger, luxury sedan will be the first on the market with optional night vision - an infrared system used by soldiers in the Persian Gulf War to help them see in the dark. In this application, night vision will give drivers a longer view down the road, helping them see beyond headlight range.

The car also has ultrasonic rear parking assist, which alerts drivers to the proximity of an obstacle behind them as they back up.

Chevrolet

The biggest sport utilities at Chevy are redesigned for 2000.

Due in dealerships in late 1999 or early 2000, the 2000 Chevy Suburban and Tahoe will share some sheet metal with the Chevy Silverado pickup truck and ride on the Silverado platform. It's a more rigid structure, helping to create a smoother, quieter ride.

Both SUVs will have a five-link, coil spring rear suspension, rather than leaf springs, and both also will have self-leveling rear shock absorbers.

The overall size of the Suburban remains the same as its predecessor, and styling is mildly redone.

The 2000 Chevy Tahoe is built to be more durable than its predecessor, right down to the dent-resistant steel body panels and redesigned door hinges.

Conservatively restyled, the new Tahoe will offer a split, third-row seat that allows seating for up to nine.

A new Monte Carlo debuts this fall, carrying on the famous name from the late 1960s and 1970s.

The 2000 mid-size coupe has aerodynamic styling with circle tail lamps that evoke memories of earlier Monte Carlos.

Engines include a 180-horsepower, 3.4-liter V-6 and a 200-horsepower, 3.8-liter, Series II V-6.

In the Venture minivan lineup, Chevy has a new, 2000 model that offers more than just run-of-the-mill video entertainment for back-seat riders.

The Chevy Venture Warner Bros. Edition not only has an in-vehicle video center, but it includes free Warner Bros. videos and compact discs as special perks, like early access to Six Flags theme parks and sneak previews of Warner Bros. movies.

Chrysler

For 2000, there's a "new" minivan smack in the middle of the minivan market.

Chrysler's Town & Country adds a 2000 LX model with a starting manufacturer's suggested manufacturer's suggested retail price plus destination charge of just under $27,000. In 1999, the lowest-priced Town & Country - an SX - carried a $27,965 sticker.

Yet the new "economy" van in the lineup - like its more expensive siblings such as the Town & Country LXi and Limited - comes well appointed. Standard features include V-6, quad seating, woodgrain accents, premium cloth trim, dual-zone temperature control air conditioning, quad head lamps, fog lamps and monochromatic exterior.

Dodge

Early in 2000, the most powerful Intrepid sedan, the Intrepid R/T, debuts with a 242-horsepower, high-output, 3.5-liter, single overhead cam V-6. Torque will top out at 250 pounds-feet at 3,950 rpm.

The Dodge Stratus line begins the 2000 model year with a new base model, the SE, which offers a 2.4-liter, 16-valve, single overhead cam four-cylinder with maximum horsepower of 150 at 5,200 rpm and 167 pound-feet of torque at 4,000 rpm.

And the Dodge Viper brings racin' to the dealership, with a factory-installed, race-ready competition package added to as many as 500 GTS coupes in 2000. They'll be known as Viper ACRs - which stands for American Club Racer.

On the truck side, Dodge introduces a Dakota pickup with four full-size doors.

Ford

The Ford F-Series, the number one-selling truck in the United States for 20 years, will expand its lineup in the first quarter of 2000 by introducing the F-150 SuperCrew.

The new entry will be the first under-8,500-pound Gross Vehicle Weight truck with four full-sized doors and a full rear passenger compartment.

Introduced early as a 2001 model, the F-150 SuperCrew's standard engine will be Ford's 220-horsepower, 4.6-liter, Triton V-8, with the 260-horsepower, 5.4-liter, Triton V-8 optional.

Ford also introduces the largest sport utility vehicle of the market in 2000, the Excursion.

With room to carry nine adults plus another 48 cubic feet of cargo space behind the third-row, bench seat, the Excursion casts a larger shadow than the previous biggest sport utility, the Chevrolet Suburban.

Ford also introduces a newly designed and re-engineered 2000 Taurus with a less-oval, more mainstream appearance.

All exterior panels on the 2000 Taurus are new, except for the doors. Up front, the grille opening is wider and headlamps are larger, giving the front-wheel drive car a bigger, more substantial look.

GMC

There's no 2000 GMC Suburban. Instead, the full-size sport utility surfaces in the new model year with a new name: Yukon XL.

Like its sibling, the Chevy Suburban, the 2000 GMC Yukon XL will be redesigned and re-engineered when it arrives in showrooms by early 2000.

The Yukon XL will be about the same size as its

Meet the Audi A6 4.2 sedan – the ultimate expression of A6

Introduced in the fall of 1997, the daring A6 from Audi succeeded in taking the mainstream German luxury touring car segment into the future and even changing the way people see cars on the whole. Its sleek-coupe-like design and rich interior set new standards in its class.

With the introduction of the A6 Avant in the summer of 1998, the A6 duo established a new prestige. A prestige marked by superior design, dimensions and dynamics.

For 2000, Audi has changed the rules again and introduced an A6 at every level of the luxury touring car segment. To complement its 200 horsepower A6 2.8 sedan and Avant, Audi is now offering the A6 2.7 T sedan and the ultimate expression of A6 – the A6 4.2 sedan with a 300 hp, 4.2-liter, five valve V-8 engine.

To craft the A6 4.2, Audi started with its A6 sedan. Exterior changes include extending the sleek nose with new front fenders and hood to make room for the larger engine – the engine that makes the A6 4.2 what it is. High power output, a high and flat torque curve, low exhaust emissions and fuel consumption reductions effected by the use of five valves per cylinder, low friction roller cam followers for valve actuation, a three-stage variable-length air intake system and variable camshaft control make this engine a technical masterpiece.

Acceleration from the extremely smooth-running V-8 engine is powerful and dynamic across all speed ranges. The 4.2 liter V-8 produces 300 hp with impressive torque across a wide engine-speed range and 295 lbs. ft. of torque at the crankshaft between 3,000 to 4,000 rpm. This ensures ample power reserves for every driving situation. Its performance is similarly impressive: no more than 6.7 seconds are needed to effortlessly speed the agile A6 4.2 quattro up to 60 mph.

The new Audi comes standard with quattro permanent all wheel drive and an electronic controlled five-speed automatic transmission with Tiptronic, a new “two plus one” contoured rear seat, Audi’s Sideguard head airbag system for increased occupant protection, front side airbag supplemental restraints, full leather seat upholstery, a glass slide/tilt sunroof with sunshade, three-position memory for the driver’s seat and outer mirrors, auto dimming outside and inside rearview mirrors, a HomeLink transmitter in the driver’s sunvisor, Bose sound system, an expandable ski sack, and a steering wheel with audio controls. The Audi A6 4.2 also comes standard with a larger fuel tank – 21.7 gallons.

Option packages on this model are few. The Warm Weather package includes a solar sunroof (which powers the ventilation system when the car is at rest to cool the interior when sitting in the hot sun), and rear side window manual sunshades and a power rear window sunshade. Stand-alone options include Audi’s ESP Electronic Stability Program for added traction and control, front and rear heated seats with independent temperature controls, front sport seats, rear side airbags, a hands-free cell phone located in the center armrest, and a six-disc trunk-mounted CD player.

The Buying Decision Just Got A Lot Harder...

For 2000, Audi has changed the rules again and introduced an A6 at every level of the luxury touring car segment. To complement its 200 horsepower A6 2.8 sedan and Avant, Audi has introduced the A6 2.7 T sedan with a 250 hp biturbo V6 engine. Step on the accelerator and the A6 2.7 T will surge to 60 miles per hour in 6.0 seconds flat when equipped with its standard 6-speed manual transmission. Opt for the no-cost five-speed automatic transmission with Tiptronic and the car will still see 60 miles per hour in less than seven seconds, 6.6 to be exact. With its standard quattro permanent all-wheel drive and slightly more firm spring and shock absorber settings, each and every owner of an A6 2.7 T will recognize that they have both power and control in this, the fastest A6 on these shores.

Tulley has continually grown over the last 42 years

On August 1, 1957, Tulley Buick came into existence when Vin Tulley purchased the Donald Buick Company, located at 280 Main Street in Nashua. Prior to that time, Vin was sales manager at Lowell Buick Company and the dealer was our own Frederic B. Emerson. In 1959, the Pontiac franchise was added.

By 1964, the business was outgrowing its facilities. However, at that time, one of this region's premier entrepreneurs and developers, Sam Tamposi, Sr., proposed a revolutionary new concept of an automotive park. Several dealers grouped together and by early 1965, the New England Automotive Village was a reality and Tulley Buick Pontiac Company had a new home on Rockne Drive in the village.

The business continued to grow through the sixties and early seventies and, by 1976, Vin made the move to acquire additional land for a used car facility and car wash operation on Graham Drive at the north end of the village. This was followed by the lease and subsequent purchase of still additional land at the corner of Daniel Webster Highway and Graham Drive in 1979. A building was erected which, at first, housed our car rental and leasing operations but was later to become the home for the BMW franchise which was added in 1981.

Within two years, still more development occurred with the addition of the GMC truck franchise (1983).

Expansion again forced rethinking of the next phase of company development. The automotive village was overcrowded to the point of jeopardizing good customer service and relations. The company was growing and needed more space. Again, it was the combination of Vin's foresight and the ability of the Tamposi-Forest families' development abilities which resulted in the acquisition of the last large remaining parcel of land in South Nashua.

The Volkswagen and Mazda franchises were added in 1995. The current facility, at 80,000 square feet, represents one of the finest facilities on the eastern seaboard.

predecessor Suburban, which is to say it will be able to accommodate a 4-by-8-foot sheet of plywood on the load floor behind the front seats.

Honda

The 2000 Honda S2000, a new, a high-performance, two-seat, open-topped roadster debuts in limited numbers this fall.

The small, front-engine, rear-wheel drive sports car is fun - capable of zooming from 0 to 60 mph in less than 6 seconds.

Later in 1999, Honda becomes the first to sell a gas-electric hybrid vehicle in the United States.

The 2000 Honda Insight promises to be one of the world's most efficient vehicles, capable of averaging more than 70 miles per gallon in combined highway/city driving while meeting even California's stringent Ultra-Low Emissions Vehicle standard.

"The Honda Insight will provide American consumers with their first look at one of tomorrow's advanced automotive powerplants," said Tom Elliott, executive vice president of American Honda Motor Co.

Infiniti

The big news here is a re-engineered and redesigned I30 sedan.

With distinctive, formal styling, the 2000 I30 is larger than its predecessor.

Under the hood, a revised, 3-liter, double overhead cam V-6 produces 227 horsepower and 217 pounds-foot of torque.

Meantime, the smaller, G20 sedan gets an improved, 2-liter, double overhead cam, four-cylinder engine producing 145 horsepower compared with the previous 140 horsepower.

Infiniti's emergency, In-Vehicle Communication System now is an option on the G20.

A 10th Anniversary Edition Q45 will be available, based on the 2000 Q45 Touring Model. It's due early in 2000. In spring of 2000, a more powerful Infiniti QX4 is planned.

Jeep

In the 2000 model year, the Jeep Grand Cherokee will be available as a two-wheel drive model with a more powerful, 230-horsepower, 4.7-liter V-8.

Inside the Grand Cherokees, new features include front seatbelt pretensioners and a "headlamps-on" telltale light on the instrument cluster, as well as a new woodgrain treatment.

Lincoln

The biggest news at Lincoln is already sold out.

Just 2.5 months after an early 2000 model-year launch, the new Lincoln LS entry-level luxury sedan was sold out, with dealers placing orders for the entire projected LS production in 1999.

The LS is built on a new, rear-wheel drive platform shared with the 2000 Jaguar S-Type sedan. Like the Jag, the LS can carry five and is well appointed.

Mazda

A second-generation MPV minivan debuted as an early 2000 model in summer 1999.

It's front-wheel drive, compared with its predecessor MPV, which was rear-wheel drive, and has sliding side doors. Earlier MPVs had car-like, hinged, side doors.

Elsewhere at Mazda, the 626 sedan is restyled, front and rear, and steering, braking and overall road feel are improved to make the car handle responsively and ride comfortably.

Mercedes-Benz

There's a new, muscle-bound sport utility in the Mercedes fold for 2000 as the 340-plus-horsepower, ML55 joins the lineup.

The popular E-Class cars are freshened, with new wheels and rocker panels. The E-Class hood also is lowered by about an inch, resulting in the discontinuation of the E300 Turbodiesel. Mercedes said the lower hoodline means the in-line, six-cylinder engine couldn't fit.

Mercedes describes the CL500 - set to debut in the first quarter of 2000 as the two-door version of the S-Class - as "one of the most sophisticated sporting coupes" in its segment.

The all-new 2000 CL includes active suspension that delivers a customized sports driving experience. The latest in communication and navigation systems also is on board.

Mercury

A new Sable debuts for 2000, with front, side and rear styling that gives the car a larger, higher, wider and more substantial appearance.

The 2000 Sable features a "personal safety system" that adapts air bag deployment according to the severity of the crash, front-seat safety belt usage and driver seat position. The system and its dual-stage air bags are designed to reduce the risks of injury from air bag inflation.

Mitsubishi

The newly redesigned sports coupe retains the flashy style it has been known for; indeed, some might argue the sleek, 2000 Eclipse is even flashier than its predecessors. The 2+2 interior feels roomier and has cockpit-like design for the driver. The big change is under the hood, however. A turbocharged engine no longer is offered. Instead, a new, 2.4-liter four-cylinder puts out 154 horsepower at 5,500 rpm - up from 140 at 6,000 rpm from the previous 2-liter four-banger.

Nissan

Most of Nissan's 2000 models came out as early introductions in 1999, including the Xterra sport utility, Maxima sedan and Frontier Crew Cab pickup truck.

Still, the Nissan Altima bows this fall with a significant freshening for the 2000 model year. The car looks a bit more distinctive, as new front and fascias project a longer and wider appearance.

But the real surprise is how the Altima handles. The new car rides and responds better, thanks to the addition of a front strut tower brace in models equipped with 16-inch wheels, larger-diameter, front and rear stabilizer bars, increased front and rear spring rates and new front and rear struts with acceleration-sensitive valving.

Oldsmobile

The big news at Olds is a 2001 model due early in 2000. The 2001 Aurora will be the first major redesign of the car since its introduction in 1994. It will be the first Aurora offering a V-6 engine using the same 215-horsepower V-6 already in use in the Olds Intrigue.

The other Aurora powerplant will be an enhanced, 250-horsepower, 4-liter V-8.

Elsewhere, the 2000 Olds Alero adds a Getrag, five-speed manual transmission.

The 190-horsepower, 4.3-liter, Vortec V-6 in the Bravada has been refined for 2000 for better fuel efficiency, quieter engine operation and lower emissions.

Plymouth

The 150-horsepower, 2.4-liter, 16-valve, double overhead cam, four-cylinder engine that was an option in the 1999 Plymouth Breeze now is a no-extra-cost feature.

The engine provides 167 pounds-foot of torque at 4,000 rpm compared with 129 pounds-foot of torque at 5,000 rpm in the former, base 2-liter powerplant.

The Plymouth Prowler gets a new color - Prowler Silver - and drops Prowler Purple in 2000.

Pontiac

A new Bonneville for the new millennium bows at Pontiac. The full-size sedan has a more rigid chassis for improved ride and drops its rounded look for a more angular appearance with distinctive halogen headlamps.

The four-door can seat up to six, offers both 205-horsepower V-6 and 240-horsepower, supercharged V-6 and includes a lot of standard equipment. Among the standard items are side air bags, tire pressure monitor, antilock brakes, 16-inch wheels, touring suspension and power windows.

Porsche

Porsches always were about speed. It's even more so in the 2000 model year.

The German sports carmaker gives its entry-level two seater, the Boxster, a larger-displacement, six-cylinder engine.

It's 2.7 liters, up from 2.5 liters. So horsepower increases from 201 to 217.

By the end of 1999, a top-of-the-line Boxster S model is due, with even more power - 250 horses from a 3.2-liter six cylinder. A six-speed manual transmission will be standard, Tiptronic optional.

The Porsche 911 gets more power, too. Horsepower from the 3.4-liter, six-cylinder engine is up to 300 in the 2000 model year, thanks to exhaust system revisions.

Inside, the 911 is updated with new material in the headliner, soft-touch grain dashboard and aluminum-look trim.

Saab

You want more power? You get it at Saab.

For 2000, the Swedish car company revives the Aero name, adding a new, 230-horsepower sedan called the 9-5 Aero.

With a 2.3-liter, high-output, turbocharged four-cylinder and five-speed manual transmission, the Aero zooms forward with 258 pounds-foot of torque available from 1,900 to 3,800 rpm.

With a four-speed automatic, the Aero's torque is 243 pounds-foot that's available between 1,900 and

Carwashes use less water than the alternatives

Recent studies by environmental experts have drawn the conclusion that car washing at home, on the front lawn or street, has several negative aspects.

Home carwashing released contaminated water directly into the environment or into storm drains that will eventually pollute the rivers. Most people don't realize where the soapy water goes.

Engineering studies show that a 5/8" hose running at 50 psi used 14 gallons of water per minute. As many as 140 gallons of water could be used in a 10-minute home carwash, most of it wasted.

Professional carwash operators in every community have taken great strides to make their operations water-efficient and designed to protect the environment with careful control of contaminated water.

Soiled water from professional carwashes is piped to water treatment facilities or runs into state-approved drainage facilities.

High-pressure nozzles and pumps at self-service and automatic carwashes are designed to get the most use out of its water flow and conserve water immensely.

Surprisingly, a professional car wash uses an average of only 30 gallons of water to wash a car as compared to the estimated 140 gallons used by the home driveway car washer.

The car wash industry also uses far less water than many other industries. For example, it takes about 150 gallons of water to make an individual Sunday paper and it takes 10 gallons of water to

How our water drips away

The average person in the U.S.A. uses 100 gallons of water a day.

Common consumptions:

- Dripping faucet - 25 to 30 gallons a day
- Ten minute shower - 25 to 50 gallons
- Average bath - 36 gallons
- Hand washing dishes with the water runny - 30 gallons
- An automatic dishwasher - 10 gallons
- Hose - 5 to 10 gallons a minute
- Washing a car with a hose running - 180 gallons
- Washing clothes with machine at top water level - 60 gallons
- Shaving with the tap running - 20 gallons
- Brushing teeth with the tap running - 2 gallons refine a single gallon of beer. Other common consumption rates can be found in the accompanying chart.

The automobile represents one of the largest investments a person makes. Keeping that car clean is a critically important preventative maintenance measure recommended by auto manufacturers. A clean car helps to prevent rust, deter the effects of acid rain, and increase the long-term residual value of your vehicle.

roadside assistance as a standard feature.

Toyota

Japan's largest automaker is busy in 2000 with new small cars, a revised, top-of-the-line sedan and its first full-size pickup truck.

Toyota boasts that the 2000 Echo has the interior room of a compact sedan but is packaged in the body of a subcompact.

With a 108-horsepower, 1.5-liter, four-cylinder engine, the Echo "will be one of the highest mileage vehicles ever offered by Toyota in America," the automaker says. Preliminary tests showed the Echo attaining 38 mpg in the city and 52 mpg in highway driving.

It replaces the Tercel in the Toyota lineup.

The Toyota Celica coupe is redesigned and re-engineered for 2000.

Volvo

The Swedish automaker was bought by Ford in 1999. In the 2000 model year, Volvo expands its range with a new line of compact cars.

The S40 sedan and V40 wagon have traditional Volvo looks, with a modern flair, and starting MSRP that's lower than any other Volvo - around $23,000.

As you'd expect, the new cars come with a host of safety features, including three-point seat belts and head restraints for all five seats, Volvo's anti-whiplash seat and head restraint design in the front seats and side air bags.

The S40 and V40 engine is a 160-horsepower, 1.9-liter, light-pressure turbocharged four-cylinder member of Volvo's modern engine family.

Also for 2000, the Volvo V70 AWD R gets more power. The car's 2.3-liter, double overhead cam, high-pressure, turbocharged, five-cylinder engine now boasts 261 horses, compared with 247 last year.

Volkswagen

With busy introductions of new models the last few years, VW takes a breather in 2000, offering mostly minor equipment updates on many models.

All models get brake-wear indicators and improved theft-prevention devices in the new year.

And, for the first time, Monsoon audio systems are offered on several VWs.

4,600 rpm. Talk about a wide torque range!

The Aero name last was used on a sport model of the Saab 9000. But the new Aero is based on the Saab 9-5 sedan. It's differentiated from the 9-5 sedan by sporty styling cues such as flared rocker panels, front spoiler and rear valence.

The 2000 Aero also has upgraded, sport chassis with sport-tuned suspension, larger brakes than the 9-5 and 17-inch alloy wheels with low-profile tires.

Saturn

Make room in the Saturn showrooms. Saturn has a new line of bigger cars.

The 2000 Saturn I sedans and station wagons are mid-size autos, meaning they compete with Honda Accords, Toyota Camry models and Chevrolet Malibus.

The new, pleasantly styled, front-wheel drive Saturns have seating for five, sizable trunks and cargo areas, dent-resistant body panels on certain parts of the cars and conveniently placed gauges and knobs on the dashboard.

Two engines are offered: A 137-horsepower, 2.2-liter, double overhead cam four-cylinder and a 182-horsepower, 3-liter, double overhead cam V-6. The latter is the first six-cylinder in a Saturn car.

Subaru

For 2000, Subaru introduces a third-generation Legacy and Outback and now uses the Legacy and Outback names on separate car models.

The new autos feature an updated look, stiffer body structure, new multi-link rear suspension, redesigned engine and a more sophisticated, driver-oriented interior. Legacy GT models project a sportier appearance with body-color spoilers molded into the lower sides and bumpers.

Subaru also has a new, rally-inspired, Impreza 2.5 RS sedan for 2000. It joins the Impreza 2.5 RS coupe that was introduced for the 1998 model year.

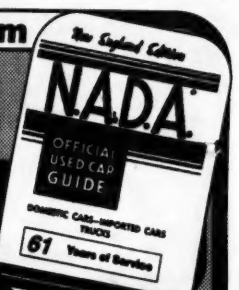

New for 2000, all Subaru vehicles include 24-hour
